Respectfully Dedicated

TO THE MEMORY OF

SAMUEL HAHNEMANN,

CHEMIST, PHILOLOGIST,

PHILOSOPHER, PHYSICIAN.

P R E F A C E.

THIS book has been compiled because it has seemed fitting that a permanent record should be made of the Homœopathic Books and Institutions, past and present, of the United States.

With every year it is becoming more difficult to obtain reliable facts concerning the early history of Homœopathy in America.

The stalwart and self-denying Fathers of our Faith have nearly all finished their labor of usefulness. It is in their books and pamphlets that the Homœopathic physician of the future may read the history of their earlier struggles to proclaim the law of Hahnemann.

This volume is as complete a collection of the data regarding the progress of Homœopathy in America as it has been possible to make.

If any of the statistics are incorrect it is not from carelessness. The difficulty in obtaining reliable information concerning the earlier books, pamphlets, magazines and institutions has been very great. Many letters have been written, libraries have been ransacked, all the Homœopathic literature of the United States and some of the foreign has been carefully collated.

When doubt has occurred regarding any information, it has been omitted.

Thanks are due the profession for the almost unanimous courtesy shown in extending all possible information.

In many cases the authors have corrected the lists of their own works.

This record extends to January 1, 1892. In a few instances later information is given.

The Bibliography proper includes: All books and pamphlets, including reprints from magazines, when issued in pamphlet form, that have been written by Homœopathic physicians residing in the United States, whether upon the subject of medicine or not; all books and pamphlets written by laymen upon the subject of Homœopathy; titles of the writings of foreign Homœopathic physicians, when the book bears an American imprint.

Where possible, the titles are given verbatim et literatim.

Twelve volumes, all published to date, of the Index Catalogue of the Library of the Surgeon-General's Office in Washington have been examined; a star placed in the title of a book denotes that the book can be found in this great library.

The titles of all the books, pamphlets, translations, magazine articles, etc., written by Hahnemann have been given, in so far as possible, in the language in which they were published.

Also a complete list of the writings of Dr. Constantine Hering.

Reference is made, under SOCIETIES, to the volume and page in every magazine ever published in the United States in which any record of the Society in question can be found.

A list of a few magazines that have not been examined is given at the end of the Section on Societies. Except these, every homœopathic magazine ever published in the United States, previous to January 1, 1892, has been examined page by page for data.

No reference is made to the reports of the American Institute of Homœopathy, as the volumes of that Society are easy of access.

Under SOCIETIES the names of the first officers only are given.

Reference is in some cases made to magazines in other sections of the book. These references are not exhaustive, and only occur when some important facts regarding the institution in question are to be found.

It is the request of the compiler that any one who can in any manner correct given data, or add new facts concerning the subject-matter contained, will not hesitate to do so. It is only by such action that a complete and thoroughly reliable history of the growth of Homœopathy in America can be obtained.

If this book be the means of teaching the junior members of the Homœopathic profession in the United States what a debt they owe to the Fathers of American Homœopathy, if it awaken a greater love for the scholarly books of the past, if it serve to bring us, as a School, nearer to the truth that the Homœopathy of Hahnemann is the real and only Law of Healing, then its mission will have been accomplished.

(In February, 1874, Boericke & Tafel issued in the Quarterly Bulletin of Homœopathic Literature, a prospectus of this work, printing 31 pages of the Symptomatology of Aconite as prepared for volume 1. The plan of publication was as follows: From two to three volumes, each of about 640 pages, were to be issued yearly. Subscription blanks were sent to the homœopathic physicians, a subscription list of 500 names being demanded before the publication was commenced.

The price to subscribers was: Bound in cloth, $5; in full sheep, or half-morocco, $6 per volume. To non-subscribers, cloth, $6; sheep, $7; half-morocco, $7.50. In volume 1 a list of the subscribers was published. Volume 1 was published in December, 1874. Volume 10, in July, 1879.

On April 6, 1879, a fire in the bindery destroyed the entire stock of volumes 2 and 4; with nearly all of volume 9, which had just been delivered to the binders. Within sixty days, volume 9 was reprinted and bound. Volumes 2 and 4 were also at once reprinted.

The work was also sold by instalments, one volume being delivered monthly.)

(This was the first publication upon the subject of homœopathy that was printed in the United States. It was a translation of Hahnemann's Essay: "The Spirit of Homœopathy," and was in the form of a letter to Dr. Hosack. It was gratuitously distributed to leading physicians throughout the country, but it was written in such imperfect and obscure German-English that few were able to understand it. Dr. H. M. Smith, of New York, has a copy of this pamphlet, which is almost, if not quite, unique. (For account of Dr. Gram see United States Medical and Surgical Journal, vol. 2, p. 449; Hahnemannian Monthly, vol. 7, p. 84; American Homœopathic Review, vol. 3, p. 184; Homœopathic Examiner, vol. 1, p. 101, 1840; American Journal of Homœopathia, 1835, No. 1.)

A circular was issued about 1869 soliciting subscriptions to a monument in honor of Dr. Gram. The monument has never been erected.

Grauvogl, Dr. von (Eduard).

1870. Text-Book of Homœopathy. By Dr. v. Grauvogl, of Nuremberg. Translated by Geo. E. Shipman, M.D., at the request of the Author. Chicago. 1870. 8vo., Part 1, pp. 341; Part 2, pp. 438. Two parts in one volume. It was published by Dr. Shipman by subscription and contains the names of the subscribers, and the photograph and the autograph of Dr. Grauvogl. Subscription price: Cloth, $6; half-morocco, $7. To non-subscribers, $7 and $8.

(A large part of this work was burned at the Chicago fire of 1871. Dr. Duncan in an editorial on the fire, in the Medical Investigator, vol. 9, p. 87, says: "Among the losses we regret to number the electrotype plates of Grauvogl, costing about $3000. When Dr. Shipman had completed his translation he looked about for a publisher, but so stupendous was the undertaking that not one was to be found. Some friends offered the doctor the necessary money to print the work. The first issue had paid for itself and a portion of the cost of the plates."

Dr. Shipman afterwards expressed his willingness to issue a second edition, but his appeal was not heeded and this continues to be a very rare book.

Dr. Hering is said to have exclaimed after reading it; "At last we have got a thinker."

1889. Guernsey's Bœnninghausen. (This is essentially a new arrangement of the symptoms found in Hempel's edition of Bœnninghausen's Therapeutic Pocket Book.

It consists of a pasteboard box, 16½ inches wide by 19½ inches high, and six inches deep. This box is lower in front and has a sloping lid. Inside it is divided into fifty small compartments, each one containing forty-nine slips, each 13½ inches long by 1½ inches wide. On each slip is printed the names of 127 remedies. In a pocket in the lid there is a narrow quarto book of 57 pages called "The Index to Guernsey's Bœnninghausen. In this Index are printed the symptoms found in Hempel's Bœnninghausen, numbered from 1 to 2467.

These correspond with the slips, each one of which is also numbered from 1 to 2467. The direction for use as given in this index, are as follows: "Mode of use: Write down all the symptoms of your case, as Hahnemann advised, one symptom on a line; then hunt for them in the index and mark the respective numbers there given, opposite each symptom on your paper.

"From this list select the 'slips' bearing these numbers, and place them side by side, so that the heavy head lines will form one continuous line across the paper. It will be found less confusing if the papers are lapped over each other, so that nothing is exposed but the marginal figures on all but the top slip, where the list of medicines will also be seen. It will be better then, to secure them by a paper weight.

"Having the papers then, so that every remedy on the first paper will be contiguous with the same on all the other papers, glance across the slips and note only those medicines which are numbered on every slip. These possess the totality of symptoms of your case. Only the remedies marked with a figure at the left are indicated in a symptom, and the numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4 alone are used, having the following significance: 1 represents the Roman type of the book; 2 the italic; 3 the small caps; 4 the bold full-face type. Thus by adding together these figures, across from side to side, on the remedies referred to, the remedy summing up the largest amount must bear strongest resemblance to the case in hand. Should two or more correspond in amount, select from among the symptoms whichever one seems the most peculiar, or important, and take the rating of the remedies in question there given, as your indication for choice."

The book was published by subscription at $8 per copy. The price to non-subscribers is $15. Philadelphia: Globe Press, August, 1889. The edition was limited. (See Medical Advance, vol. 23, p. 201, and vol. 26, p. 389.)

(A short article was published in the Iowa State Press, December, 1875, ridiculing the claim of Homœopaths for recognition in the Medical University of Iowa. Dr. Guilbert reprinted this article with his answer, in the above tractate. A copy of it was placed on the desk of every member of the Iowa Legislature at the session of 1876, which resulted in victory for the cause of Homœopathy, doubtless influenced by the indefatigable exertions of Dr. Guilbert.)

Translated from the second revised and enlarged edition, by G. E. Gramm. New York and Philadelphia: Boericke & Tafel. 1881. 12mo., pp. 223. Cloth, $1.25.

Hahnemann, Samuel Christian Friedrich.

Born at Meissen, Saxony, April 10, 1755. Entered the University of Leipzig in 1775. In 1777 went to Vienna, where he attended the hospitals and heard lectures. Soon after, by invitation of Baron v. Bruckenthal, became resident physician and librarian at Hermannstadt where he remained nearly two years. He then, upon August 10, 1779, defended his thesis and received the degree of doctor of medicine, at Erlangen. Returned home and remained nine months in Hettstadt, Saxony, and in Dessau. In 1781 he became parish doctor in Gommern, near Magdeburg.

On December 1, 1783, he married Henrietta Kuchler, the step-daughter of an apothecary at Dessau named Haseler. He then went to Dresden, and in 1789 moved to Leipzig. In 1792 went to Gotha; in 1794 to Pymont, and thence to Brunswick; in 1797 he lived at Konigslutter; in 1799 he went to Altona and Hamburg; during the next few years he lived in Eilenburg, Machern, Wittenburg, Dessau; in 1806 he removed to Torgau, where he wrote the Organon. In 1811 he went to Leipzig to qualify at the University; remained there till 1819, proving medicines and teaching the new doctrines. On account of dispensing his own medicine he was driven from Leipzig, and Duke Frederick Ferdinand, of Anhalt, invited him to Cöthen, with the privilege of practicing as he pleased. He went there in 1821 as Hofrath and ducal physician. On March 31, 1830, Madame Hahnemann died. In 1834 M^{lle} Melanie d'Hervilly Gohier, a French lady, came to Cöthen and placed herself under the treatment of Hahnemann. On January 28, 1835—he, being at that time 80 years of age, they were married. She persuaded him to remove to Paris, where he had a very large practice.

He died at his house in the Rue de Milan, Paris, at five o'clock in the morning, Sunday, July 2, 1843.

He had a bilious diarrhœa, followed by intermittent fever; when seemingly convalescent, bronchitis senilis appeared and he died in three days. He was placed in the family tomb of his wife at Montmartre.

The funeral was private. About half-past seven one rainy morning, Hahnemann's body was placed in a hearse, and followed on foot by the widow, by Hahnemann's daughter, Madame Liebe, and her son, and by a young doctor named Lethiere. The body was placed in the vault without ceremony, and still remains there without anything to mark its resting-place. (See British Journal of Homœopathy, vol. 36, p. 301.)

LIST OF WRITINGS.

The following list embraces the titles of all translations, original books and essays, and also of magazine articles. Each title is, where it is possible, given verbatim, and in the language in which published. This list is compiled in part from the original volumes formerly owned by Dr. Hering and now preserved in the library of the Hahnemann Medical College at Philadelphia, and from the following bibliographies:

Kleine medicinische Schriften von Samuel Hahnemann. Gesammelt und herausgegeben von D. Ernst Stapf. Dresden und Leipzig, 1829. (Lesser Writings of Hahnemann.) (Bibliography in last six pages.)

(This edition contains a fine portrait, in a sitting position, with a quill pen in the hand and the inscription: "Samuel Hahnemann, M.D., geb. d. 10 April, 1755.")

1833. The Same. Funste, verbesserte und vermehrte Auflage. Mit dem Bildnisse des Verfassers. Dresden und Leipzig: in der Arnoldischen Buchhandlung. 1833.

(But five editions of the Organon were issued in the German during Hahnemann's lifetime. At the time of his death in 1843 the MSS. of a sixth edition, in the handwriting of the Master, was ready for the press. Its existence was kept seeret by Madame Hahnemann until 1865, when Dr. Lutze published a sixth edition, and Dr. Suss-Hahnemann, the grandson of Hahnemann, proposed to issue a reprint of the fourth edition. Madame Hahnemann then declared that she possessed the manuscript of an edition eorrected by Hahnemann, and warned the publishers against infringing on her copyright by issuing the Suss-Hahnemann edition. In 1877 Dr. Bayes wrote in behalf of the London School of Homœopathy asking her to transfer Hahnemann's valuable records to the School for publication. She replied that she had the finally eorrected copy of the Organon and that she would superintend its publication if the English admirers of Hahnemann would raise a sum the interest of which would equal her yearly professional income. The matter then was dropped. Madame Hahnemann died in 1878, and the MSS. of the Organon, the case-books, letters, etc., of Hahnemann passed into the possession of Madame Bœnninghausen, Hahnemann's adopted daughter. In 1880 Dr. H. N. Guernsey, just returned from Europe, where he had become acquainted with Madame Bœnninghausen and also with Mr. Peter Stuart, a shipowner, of Liverpool, made the following statement, at a meeting held at Dr. Hering's house, June 9, 1808; That all Hahnemann's papers could be bought for $10,000. An organization was formed of English and American physicians for the purpose of raising the money. The project was not successful.)

1849. The Same. 3d American Edition. With improvements and additions from the last German edition, and Dr. C. Hering's introductory remarks. New York: William Radde. 1849. 8vo., pp. 230. Cloth, $1.

1869. The Same.* 4th American Edition. New York: William Radde. 1869. 8vo., pp. 229. Cloth, $1.50.

1876. Organon of the Art of Healing. By Samuel Hahnemann, M.D. "Aude sapere." 5th American Edition. Translated from the 5th German Edition, by C. Wesselhœft, M.D. New York: Boericke & Tafel. 1876. 8vo., pp. 244. Cloth $2.

Reprints were made in 1887 and in 1891.

(This 5th edition was published in this wise: A great many complaints having been made of the inaccuracy and incorrectness of the preceding four editions, all of which were taken from the British translation and the Allentown additions, the plates of the 4th edition were destroyed; and Dr. C. Wesselhœft was requested by Messrs. Bocricke & Tafel to make an entirely new translation. This has had a very extensive sale.)

1865. Organon der Heilkunst. Mit abdruck der Vorreden und wichtigsten der Varianten der ersten bis funften Auflage, neuen Bemerkungen und einem Anhang aus Samuel Hahnemann's Schriften, herausgegeben von Sanitätsrath Dr. A. Lutze. Cöthen. 1865.

Dr. Lutze's translation reached a 7th edition in 1881.

(The publication of this book brought protests from both German and American homœopaths. It was alleged that Dr. Lutze took liberties with the original text; and also sought to show that Hahnemann favored the practice of alternation.

1889. In the "Journal of Homœopathics," New York, vol. 1, No. 1, April, 1889, a translation of the Organon from the 5th German edition was commenced by Dr. B. Fincke. As the journal was discontinued, it was not completed.

1891. Circulars were issued by Dr. J. R. Haynes, of Indianapolis, Ind., soliciting subscribers to an edition by Dr. Fincke, to be limited, and issued by subscription. (See California Homœopath, vol. 9, p. 337.)

1811. Des Sohnes Widerlegung.

1811. Reine Arzneimittellehre.* Dresden: In der Arnoldischen Buchhandlung. 1811. 8vo., 6 vols. (The Materia Medica Pura.) Vol. 1, 1811; vol. 2, 1816; vol. 3, 1816; vol. 4, 1818; vol. 5, 1819; vol. 6, 1821.

1822. The Same.* Zweite, vermehrte Auflage. Dresden: In der Arnoldischen Buchhandlung. 1822. 8vo.

Six volumes were published of this 2d edition, as follows: Vol. 1, 1822, pp. 504; vol. 2, 1824, pp. 508; vol. 3, 1825, pp. 368; vol. 4, 1825, pp. 356; vol. 5, 1826, pp. 346; vol. 6, 1827, pp. 333; vols. 5 and 6 bear the imprint—Dresden and Leipzig. Vol. 2 contains the "Geist der Homœopathischen Heil lehre," or Spirit of the Homœopathic Healing Art. This was afterwards translated by Hans Birch Gram, and published by him in New York, in 1825. Dr. A. Lippe translated it in 1875. (See GRAM, also LIPPE.)

1830. The Same. 3d Edition. Dresden und Leipzig: Arnold. 1830. 8vo. Vol. 2 was published in 1833, 8vo., pp. 461. Only vols. 1 and 2 were ever published.

In 1840 Dr. Quin of London commenced a translation of the Materia Medica Pura, but when the first volume was eompleted and printed the entire impression was destroyed by fire. But one copy, now in the library of the British Homœopathic Society, is known to have been saved.

His translation was from the second German edition. (See Dudgeon's edition of Materia Medica Pura, translator's preface, p. 8.)

1846. *Materia Medica Pura, by Samuel Hahnemann. Translated and edited by Charles Julius Hempel. 4 vols. New York: William Radde. 1846. 8vo., pp. 226, 194, 202, 260. Cloth, $6.

(The book was originally issued in the four volumes but was afterwards bound in one volume. Dr. Hempel in his translation, used the 1st volume of the 3d German edition and the other volumes of the 2d edition. A reprint of this work was commenced in the Medical Counselor, vol. 3, No. 1, April, 1890. It was discontinued August, 1891.)

This work was edited by Drs. C. G. Raue, C. B. Knerr, and C. Mohr. It was issued by the American Homœopathic Publishing Society (J. M. Stoddard & Co.) The price to members of this Society was about the actual cost of publication. To non-subscribers, the price was $5 per volume. After volume 4 the Publishing Society was obliged to relinquish this work, and F. A. Davis, Esq., Medical Publisher and Bookseller, of 1231 Filbert Street, Philadelphia, became its publisher. He republished vols. 1, 2, 3 and 4 in 1889; and as the original plates had been destroyed, the matter had to be entirely reset. The work is copyrighted by Mrs. Theresa Hering, Dr. Hering's widow. The editorship has continued the same.

New York: William Radde. 1848. 2 vols. 8vo., pp. 944, 1064. Half-morocco, $11.

In Kirby's American Journal of Homœopathy, vol. 1, p.

200 (December 26, 1846), appears an advertisement of Jahr's Symptomen Codex; to be translated from the German, by Dr. F. Humphreys.

The work was to have been issued in 12 or 14 parts, each of 96 octavo pages; each part was to cost 50 cents. The publisher was Charles G. Dean. In the meantime a translation had been begun by C. J. Hempel, at the instance of Mr. William Radde. Several sample circulars were issued, among them one of about thirty pages, by Dr. Humphreys. This circular the rival translators declared to be full of errors in translation. There was considerable feeling in the matter, the magazines of the day containing certain letters upon the subject. In January, 1847, Mr. Radde bought out Mr. Dean's interest in the Symptomen Codex; the translation was made by Dr. Hempel. It was issued in parts by Mr. Radde. Each of these parts contained about one hundred pages.

The title page of each part bears the following:

"Jahr's New Manual, originally published under the name of the Symptomen Codex (Digest of Symptoms.) This work is intended to facilitate a comparison of the parallel symptoms of the various homœopathic agents, thereby enabling the practitioner to discover the characteristic symptoms of each drug and to determine with ease and correctness what remedy is most homœopathic to the existing group of symptoms. Translated with important and extensive additions from various sources, by Charles Julius Hempel, assisted by James M. Quin. With revisions and clinical notes by John F. Gray. Contributions by A. Gerald Hull and George W. Cook, of New York; and C. Hering, J. Jeanes, C. Neidhard, W. Williamson, and J. Kitehen, of Philadelphia. With a preface by Constantine Hering.

"This new manual is distinguished from the old by many important and essential advantages. It is much more complete than the former editions of Jahr, embracing nearly three times the amount of matter in the old Jahr, and furnishing, moreover, the pathogenetic symptoms of several entirely new remedies, by distinguished provers.

"The expression of the symptoms as recorded in the Materia Medica Pura, and in the isolated provings of recent observers, has been retained, and only unnecessary repetitions have been avoided.

"The Editors have severally made additions to the work; they pledge themselves for the exactness of the translation, and invite the profession to subscribe to the present work with the fullest and most implicit confidence. Price 50 cents a number. Subscribers remitting $5, in advance, to the publisher in New York, will be entitled to eleven numbers. New York: William Radde, Publisher, 322 Broadway. J. T. S. Smith, 488 Broadway. Philadelphia: C. L. Rademacher, 39 North 4th Street.

Boston : Otis Clapp, 12 School Street. St. Louis, Mo. : Frank-sen & Wesselhoeft."

Data concerning this can be found, in Kirby's American Journal of Homœopathy, vol. 1; Homœopathic Examiner, n. s., vol. 2, p. 295; Philadelphia Journal of Homœopathy, vol. 4, p. 502.

A Journal that lasted for nine numbers, The Homœopathic News, of Philadelphia, was principally devoted to showing incorrectness in this book.

About this time Mr. Bailliere, in London, published a reprint of the old Jahr.

The Symptomen Codex is now very scarce, commanding at any time more than the original price.

In 1853 a Complete Repertory constituting vol. 3 of this work was published by Dr. C. J. Hempel. (For full title, see HEMPEL.)

(Two homœopathic physicians, Drs. Pulte and Ehrmann, on August 11, 1849, published in the Cincinnati public papers a report of certain cases of Cholera treated by them, in which they claimed to have had but two deaths during an entire epidemic. Dr. Latta, a physician, and also publisher of a religious newspaper, proclaimed this report untrue, and published an article giving the names and other particulars, of nine patients who he declared, were unsuccessfully treated by the two homœopathic physicians. The Homœopathic Association of Cincinnati appointed a Committee of five citizens to investigate the matter. This Committee reported in favor of the homœopathic side of the question. (See ALPHONSO TAFT.) This report was reviewed in a pamphlet by Dr. Latta (see LATTÄ), and this was answered in the above pamphlet by Dr. Miller.)

SECTION III.

HOMŒOPATHIC MAGAZINES.

1835. Correspondenzblatt der Homoopathischen Aerzte. Ausgegeben durch die Nordamerikanische Akademie der homöopathischen Heilkunst, in Allentown an der Lecha. Erstes Heft. 1835-36. Allentown, Pa. Gebrucht bei A. und W. Blummer. (Journal of Correspondence of the Homœopathic Physicians, published in the interests of the Allentown Academy, at Allentown, Pa., 1835-36.) 4to., pp. 4. Commenced October 22, 1835. Edited by C. Hering. With number 4 his name appears on the title, as editor. Vol. 1 consists of 12 numbers, dated as follows: October 22, November 20, 1835, January 9, 22, February 5, March 19, April 1, June 2, 24, August 31, November 3 (11, 12), 1836. Vol. 2. January 18, February 8, 1837. 14 numbers were issued in all. The last few contain 8 pages. There was also published with this journal the Correspondenzblatt Supplement, in 7 parts, each part of two pages. This was called the Archivzettel, and consisted of short notes regarding the clinical uses of various remedies. The journal is for the most part printed in German, although some reports of cases are in English, as also notices of the Allentown publications. The regulations, and dates of the lectures, of the Academy are also given. "Conditions of Subscription. The Correspondenzblatt will only be sent to those who have paid one dollar in advance. It will appear as often as enough contributions are received to fill a number such as the present 4 pages, but it will be issued at least every four weeks. Each subscriber will receive as many numbers as it is possible to print with the money received, in any case not less than ten. As soon as we are able to furnish 25 numbers for the remuneration mentioned, the surplus will be divided in payment for all communications received, beginning with and including the first number, but no less than five dollars is to be paid for each number. Whoever joins or subscribes later will be expected to take all preceding numbers that have been issued, and pay for them as did those who subscribed at first, until the whole edition shall have been absorbed." The Archivzettel was first issued March 22, 1836. It was only sent to those "who have sent $3, and subscribed for the Correspondenzblatt; those living at a distance must pay $5; if any one has sent in $1, he need only send in $4 more."

1835. The American Journal of Homœopathia. Edited by John F. Gray and A. G. Hull. Bi-monthly. New York. Commenced February, 1835. 8vo., pp. 48. Published by Moore & Payne. Nos. 3, 4 bear the imprint, Ludwig, printer. But four numbers were issued. $4. The following foot note appears: "The editors of this journal have preferred this form of title of the system of Hahnemann, to that used by some English writers on the subject. Dr. Gram, who published the first work on the subject which has appeared in English (a translation of Hahnemann's Geist der homœopathischen Heil-lehre), used the Latin form. We have a precedent in the general adoption of neuralgia instead of neuralgy."

1838. The American Journal of Homœopathy. Edited by an Association of American Homœopathic Physicians. Philadelphia: W. L. J. Kiderlin & Co. 1838. 8vo., pp. 36. Commenced August 10, 1838, continued to July, 1839. Bi-monthly. But 6 numbers were issued. In 1839 these 6 numbers were reissued in one volume, with the title:

1838. Miscellanies on Homœopathy. Edited by an Association of Homœopathic Physicians. Philadelphia: Published by L. J. Kiderlin & Co., 64 South Fourth St., 1839. 8vo., pp. 216.

Dr. Metcalf calls this the Philadelphia Homœopathic Journal. It was edited by Drs. Hering, Lingen, and C. Neidhard, though their names do not appear on the title page.

1840. The Homœopathic Examiner. Edited by A. G. Hull. Monthly. New York. Commenced January, 1840. Royal 8vo., pp. 48. Suspended from December, 1843, to August, 1845, when a new series was commenced under the editorship of J. F. Gray and C. J. Hempel. This new series was issued monthly as a regular 8vo. for two years, and then was discontinued. Five volumes in all were published. Vol. 1 was issued by Ludwig; vol. 2 by Felt & Co.; vol. 3 by W. Dean. The new series was issued by Radde. Rueckert's Therapeutics and Bœnninghausen on Intermittent Fever were published as appendices. Subscription, $3.

1845. The Homœopathic Pioneer. A Scientific and Practical Journal of Homœopathy. By H. Hull Cator and L. M. Tracy, editors and proprietors. July, 1845. Vol. 1, No. 1. "Omnis medicina ab observatione oritur; sedula et accurata phenomenorum exploratio fundamentum est cognitionis morborum." Syracuse: Tucker & Kinney. Royal 8vo., pp. 16. Monthly. But 12 numbers were published. Subscription, $1.

1846. The American Journal of Homœopathy. By Drs. S. R. Kirby and R. A. Snow. "The agitation of thought is the beginning of truth." Vol. 1. Semi-monthly. $1 a year. New York: Chas. G. Dean, 2 Ann St. Commenced April 25, 1846. 8vo., pp. 8. The first number was issued under the title of The New York Journal of Homœopathy. It was reprinted under the above title.

After No. 1 the journal was enlarged to 12 pages. After vol. 2 it became a monthly of 16 pages, with Dr. Kirby as sole editor. It was published until August, 1854, No. 4 of vol. 9 being the last number issued.

1847. Southwestern Homœopathic Journal and Review. Edited by J. T. Temple. Commenced August, 1847. St. Louis, Mo. 8vo., pp. 16. Monthly. After March, 1850, Thos. Haughton became editor. But three vols. were issued. $1.

1848. The Northwestern Journal of Homœopathia. Geo. E. Shipman, editor and proprietor. Chicago: Whitmarsh & Fulton, prs., 131 Lake St. 8vo., pp. 16. Monthly. Commenced October, 1848, and continued until September, 1852. In September, 1849, Dr. Shipman issued an extra of 28 pages on Cholera. But four vols. were published. $1.

1848. The Milwaukee Homœopathic Medical Reporter. Edited by L. M. Tracy and J. Douglas. Monthly. Continued but a short time.

1848. Michigan Journal of Homœopathy. "In certainty, unity; in doubt, liberty; in all things, charity." Edited by John Ellis and S. B. Thayer. Detroit, Mich.: Geo. W. Pattison, Pr. 12mo., pp. 12. Monthly. Commenced November, 1848. $1. Vol. 1 extends from November, 1848, to October, 1849. In No. 12 of vol. 1 the editors say that the journal will no longer be issued as a monthly, but that an occasional number will be gratuitously issued to the original subscribers. It was after this published irregularly. No. 9 of vol. 2 appeared in June, 1854. Not quite two complete volumes were published. The twelve numbers constituting vol. 1 were sold bound in paper for 50 cents; in cloth for 75 cents.

1849. The Northern Ohio Medical and Scientific Examiner. Edited by A. W. Oliver, John Gilman, John Wheeler, C. D. Williams and W. B. Waterman. Monthly. Cleveland. 8vo., pp. 16. Commenced February, 1848. $1. With No. 4 of vol. 1 the title was changed to The Ohio Medical Examiner, and it was published at Columbus, O.

(Data in Kirby's American Journal of Homœopathy, vol. 2. p. 266. Southwestern Homœopathic Journal, vol. 1, p. 168.)

1850. The Homœopathist. "Similia similibus curantur." Vol. 1, Dr. D. Lewis, editor, Buffalo, May, 1850. Semi-monthly. 50 cents a year. 8vo., pp. 16. The second volume was issued monthly. Published two years. This was a journal for the laity. Dr. Lewis also sold homœopathic medicines in Buffalo (See PHARMACIES) at that time, and yet he was repudiated by the Western Medical College of Cleveland. The College people said he was not a graduate, but some years back had been a Censor, but was not one at that time (1856). While Dr. Lewis published a journal in English, and also one in German, advocating the doctrines of Hahnemann, yet later he devoted his life to hygienic measures.

(See Canadian Journal of Homœopathy, vol. 1, p. 159., St. Catharines, C. W., 1856.)

1849. Quarterly Homœopathic Journal. Edited by Joseph Birnstill and B. de Gersdorff. Boston: Otis Clapp. 8vo., pp. 144. Commenced January, 1849. Quarterly. Vol. 2 closed with October, 1850, and the Journal was discontinued until July, 1852, when a new series was commenced, with Joseph Birnstill and J. A. Tarbell as editors. Quarterly. 8vo., pp. 48. Of this new series, two volumes were published. The whole set consists of four volumes. Old series, vols. 1, 2, 1849-50. New series, vols. 1, 2, 1852-54. The initial number, January, 1849, was edited by A. C. Becker, who died on the 15th of the same month. An appendix on Materia Medica was for a short time published.

1851. The North American Homœopathic Journal. A Quarterly Magazine of Medicine and the Auxiliary Sciences. Conducted by Constantine Hering, Philadelphia; E. E. Marcy and J. W. Metcalf, New York. New York: William Radde, 322 Broadway. Commenced February, 1851. 8vo., pp. 148. Quarterly. Issued in February, May, August, and November. It was discontinued at the end of vol. 3, November, 1853, until August, 1855, when it was again issued under the title:

The North American Journal of Homœopathy. (The separate numbers, retained the old title until August, 1862, vol. 11.) Edited by E. E. Marcy, John C. Peters, William H. Holcombe, Henry C. Preston. This was called vol. 4, and was published by William Radde, New York. It was a slightly larger 8vo., of 148 pages, published as before, quarterly. The same names are found on the title page until vol. 8, although during that time there was some difference of editorial opinion. With vol. 8, the editorial staff consisted of J. C. Peters, William H. Holcombe, F. G. Snelling, Edward Bayard, H. L. H. Hoffendahl, E. M. Hale, R. Ludlam, T. G. Comstock, E. C. Franklin, F. S. Bradford. Vol. 9 has the same editors, with F. G. Snelling editor-in-chief, and the addition of J. C. Peterson. With vol. 10, 1862, the staff consisted of J. T. Alley, C. E. Blumenthal, J. A. Carmichael, T. G. Comstock, W. A. M. Culbert, D. M. Dake, J. P. Dake, J. S. Douglas, E. C. Franklin, E. A. Guilbert, E. M. Hale, W. T. Helmuth, W. H. Holcombe, F. W. Hunt, R. Ludlam, E. E. Marcy, C. Neidhard, W. E. Payne, H. C. Preston, J. T. Temple, I. M. Ward, W. Williamson. With vol. 13 Drs. Carmichael and Ward were dropped; R. E. W. Adams added. With vol. 15 C. E. Blumenthal was dropped, George Lingen, C. J. Hempel, added. This staff was continued until vol. 19 (new series, vol. 1), when F. W. Hunt and Samuel Lilienthal became editors. With vol. 20, Dr. Lilienthal became sole editor. He held the editorial chair until the end of vol. 33, May, 1885. The first series of this journal extended from 1851 to 1870, and embraced the first eighteen volumes, to which a general index was published in pamphlet form. The second, or new series, commenced with vol. 19, August, 1870, and continued until the end of vol. 33, August, 1885. During this time it was issued as a quarterly. It was published by William Radde until vol. 19 (1870), when Boericke & Tafel became the publishers, so continuing until (vol. 32), January, 1883, when F. E. Boericke assumed the responsibility. With September, 1885, vol. 1, of the third and present series, was commenced; this is the thirty-fourth consecutive volume. With this volume the old quarterly became a monthly, and was published by "The Journal Publishing Club. Limited." "It was edited by G. M. Dillow, S. F. Wilcox, M. Leal, C. E. Beebe, C. F. Sterling, E. H. Porter; with George G. Shelton as Business Manager. With No. 2, H. M. Dearborn was added. With No. 6, C. F. Sterling retired and F. S. Fulton was added. With June, 1887, A. B. Norton became Business Manager. In 1890, J. L. Moffat was added. In June, 1891, Irving Townsend became Business Manager. The twelve numbers issued as vol. 34 extend from September, 1885, to January, 1887. Vol. 35 commences with January, 1887, and since that date the journal has been regularly issued as a monthly. This journal since it became a monthly, has contained 64 pages, large 8vo. It is still in active operation. It was originally published at $3 a year; with vol. 13 the price was $4; since vol. 34, 1886, it has been $3. In August, 1855, an appendix was commenced: "The Elements of a new Materia Medica and Therapeutics," by E. E. Marcy, J. C. Peters, A. O. Füllgraff. It was continued until 1861, about 850 pages being published. Several other appendices were issued.

1851. The Cincinnati Journal of Homœopathy. By B. Ehrmann, A. Miller, and G. W. Bigler. Commenced March, 1851. Cincinnati, O. Monthly. 8vo., pp. 16. It was issued under the supervision of the Society of Homœopathic Physicians of Cincinnati, and was published one year. $1.

SECTION V.

HOMŒOPATHIC PUBLISHERS.

Very many of the earlier homœopathic books were published by their authors. The following list contains only the names of those publishers who have made a specialty of works on Homœopathy, and does not include all the gentlemen who have issued from time to time a homœopathic book.

Nearly all of the publishers have also conducted homœopathic pharmacies. Book catalogues and lists have been issued by most of them, either with their pharmacy catalogues or independently.

The addresses given in the following pages are those at which the publishers first commenced business; the removals may be found in the Chapter on Pharmacy.

The dates embrace the time during which each one carried on business.

American Homœopathic Publishing Society. Philadelphia. 1879 to 1885. (J. M. Stoddard & Co.) It was to have published books at nearly cost price for its members, but after issuing four volumes of Hering's Guiding Symptoms, its only publication, it was discontinued. The remaining volumes of the Guiding Symptoms were published by F. A. Davis, of Filbert Street, Philadelphia. Issued annual reports.

PART II.
HOMŒOPATHIC INSTITUTIONS.

SECTION I.

HOMŒOPATHIC SOCIETIES,

NOW OR AT ANY TIME EXISTENT IN THE UNITED STATES; WITH THE BIBLIOGRAPHY OF EACH, AND REFERENCE TO SUCH MAGAZINES AS CONTAIN ANY ACCOUNT OF THEM; WITH THE NAMES OF THEIR ORIGINAL OFFICERS.

In every case where the names of the first officers of any society are not given it has been due to the fact that reliable data could not be obtained. Under "Reports in," will be found a reference to the volume and page of every magazine published in the United States in which any account of the society in question can be found. A list of the journals that have not been collated is given at the end of this section. With this exception, every homœopathic magazine ever published has been carefully examined for data.

NATIONAL SOCIETIES.

The American Institute of Homœopathy. Organized at the Museum of Natural History, New York City, April 10, 1844. Not incorporated. Existent. Migratory. Annually, in June. Original Officers: President, Constantine Hering, Philadelphia. Vice-Presidents, Josiah Flagg, Boston, William Channing, New York. Secretary, Henry G. Dannel, New York. General Secretary, John F. Gray, New York. Treasurer, S. R. Kirby, New York. After the first meeting there was no Vice-President until the session of 1865, when the office was permanently established. The names of the General Secretaries are given in Section I. Meetings have been held yearly except during the years 1861, 1862, 1863, 1864. On account of the War of the Rebellion no meetings were held during these four years. A Circular was issued on May 10, 1861, stating that in view of the present unsettled state of National affairs, the 18th Session of the Institute, which was to have been held in Cincinnati in June, would be postponed for one year. No meetings were held until 1865. In 1846 a Branch was formed in New York called The Homœopathic Society of New York, and Branch of the American Institute of Homœopathy. A Branch was instituted in New Jersey in 1849, and one in Philadelphia about the same time. Several other Branches were also formed. From a small 12mo. pamphlet of twelve pages, the size of the annual volume has constantly increased until it now consists of a large and handsomely bound volume of one thousand or more pages. Volume 1 was bound in cloth; all later until 1867, in paper. From 1867 to 1880 the volumes were furnished with pasteboard sides, whose chief virtue is a tendency to become unhinged. The volumes since 1880 have been issued in handsome cloth binding. Since 1867 they have contained tabulated statements of homœopathic societies, colleges, hospitals and journals. In some of the volumes approximate lists of the yearly bibliography are given. It has been the custom to make reprints of many of the papers presented to the Institute, for general circulation. The annual addresses of the presidents have usually been issued in pamphlet form and are titled under Authors. Announcement circulars, programmes of the order of exercises, discussions, etc., are also issued yearly. Abbreviated reports of the meetings are usually published in the journals. As the reports are to be found in the yearly volumes; no reference has been made to the magazines containing them. Members, if not in arrears, are entitled to the yearly transactions free.

1846. Transactions of the American Institute of Homœopathy. Vol. 1. Philadelphia: C. L. Rademacher. Boston: Otis Clapp. 1849. 12mo., pp. 299. Cloth, $1.50. (This contains the minutes of the sessions of 1844, 1845, which occupy eight pages. The rest of the book is devoted to the Provings of Medicines by the Central Bureau of American Provers.)

1853. Materia Medica of American Provings, by C. Hering, J. Jeanes, C. B. Matthews, W. Williamson, C. Neidhard, S. Dubs, C. Bute. Containing the provings of Acidum benzoicum, Acidum fluorium, Acidum oxalicum, Elaterium, Eupatorium perfoliatum, Kalmia latifolia, Lobelia inflata, Lobelia cardinalis, Podophyllum peltatum, Sanguinaria canadensis, and Triosteum perfoliatum. Collected and arranged by the American Institute of Homœopathy, with a Repertory by W. P. Esrey. Second thousand. Philadelphia: Rademacher & Sheck. 1853. (This is a reprint of the 1846 book, with a new title page.)

Proceedings of the Annual Meetings of the American Institute of Homœopathy. 1846 to 1866. 12mo. and 8vo. Paper.

Transactions of the Annual Sessions of the American Institute of Homœopathy, 1866 to 1879. 8vo., pasteboard sides. (Previous to 1866 the volumes are paged consecutively. From 1866 to 1879 they are divided into sections, and each section is paged separately so that the reports of the various bureaus can be bound in separate volumes.)

Transactions of the Annual Sessions of the American Institute of Homœopathy, 1880 to 1891. 8vo. Bound in cloth, and with the pages numbered consecutively.

The volume for 1891 contains also the Minutes of the Fourth Quinquennial Congress held at Atlantic City, June 16 to 22, 1891.

1848. Report on Posology. By P. P. Wells, of Pompey, N. Y. (See Transactions, 1848.)

1850. Topographical Anatomy. A Report on the Subject made to the American Institute of Homœopathy, at its Seventh Annual Meeting, in Albany, N. Y., June, 12, 1850, by its Committee Appointed for that purpose, Drs. Ingalls, Flagg, and Gregg, Illustrated by Four Lithographic Figures of the Human Body. Boston: David Clapp. 1850. 12mo., pp. 72.

1868. Report of the Bureau of Materia Medica, Pharmacy and Proving, of the Twentieth Session of the American Institute of Homœopathy, 1868. 8vo., pp. 98.

1867. Report of the Bureau of Organization, Registration and Statistics, to the American Institute of Homœopathy. Contains list of Institutions, etc.

1880. The Same. Boston: A. Mudge & Son. 8vo., pp. 20. (This was also issued by the Homœopathic Mutual Life Insurance Company.)

1890, 1891. The Same. (See T. F. Smith.) These reports have been issued from the transactions.

The United States Association of Homœopathic German Physicians. At the time the Western Institute of Homœopathy held its second Annual Session, in Chicago, in 1864, there chanced to be in the city quite a number of German Homœopathic Physicians; only two of whom were members of the Institute. These gentlemen, having for some time previously discussed the plan of a German Homœopathic Society, decided to organize temporarily. This was done; Dr. J. Ulrich of Chicago, was chosen President, and Dr. Jagger, of Elgin, Secretary. A call was issued for a general convention at Chicago. On November 16, 1864, this meeting was held, and the Society was fully organized. It was also known as the Society of Homœopathic Physicians of the Northwest. Officers: President, C. Hering, Philadelphia; Vice-President, J. Birnstill, Newton, Mass.; Treasurer, Dr. Fellerer, St. Louis; Recording Secretary, Dr. Kniepeke, Chicago; Corresponding Secretary, Dr. Blumenthal,

New York. Assistant Secretaries; Drs. Lilienthal, New York; Luyties, St. Louis; Jaeger, Chicago. Foreign Secretary, Ad. Lippe, Philadelphia. Not incorporated. Met semi-annually. A great deal of opposition was made to the so-called exclusiveness of this Society. But few meetings were ever held.

Alumni Association of the Hahnemann Medical College of Philadelphia. The first organization of graduates was in 1857. On March 3, 1865, the Class of 1860 met at the Continental Hotel, Philadelphia. A permanent organization was effected and the following officers were chosen: President, John Malin, Germantown; Secretary, J. Lester Keep, Brooklyn. It was decided to meet every five years, the officers being elected to serve for that term. In 1866 another organization was formed to meet every three years. None of these organizations were permanent, and they partook more of the reunions of the various classes than of a regular association. A meeting of the Alumni residing in Philadelphia and its vicinity was held in the lower lecture room of the old college at No. 1105 Filbert Street, on the evening of December 4, 1884, and the present Society was organized. Officers: President, Augustus Korndorfer; Vice-Presidents, Wm. B. Trites, H. F. Ivins, J. H. McClelland; Permanent Secretary, W. W. Van Baun; Provisional Secretary, Clarence Bartlett; Treasurer, Wm. H. Bigler. Not incorporated. Existent. Meets annually at the Alumni Hall, College Building, Philadelphia, on the afternoon of the day of the College Commencement. Monthly meetings were held in the Alumni Hall in 1889. (See Hahnemannian Monthly, vol. 24, March.) A Washington, D. C. Branch was formed November 28, 1890. The annual meeting is held in March. Officers; President, T. S. Verdi; Vice-President, C. B. Gilbert; Secretary, Wm. R. King; Treasurer, L. B. Swormstedt.

Pennsylvania.

The North American Academy of the Homœopathic Healing Art. Founded at Allentown, Pa., April 10, 1835. Incorporated June 17, 1836. In the early part of the year 1835 a stock company was formed, money was raised and a block of ground was purchased bounded by Hamilton Street on the North, Walnut Street on the South, Fourth Street on the East and Penn Street on the West. Two wings each of two stories were built, of red brick. These wings were built parallel to each other with a vacant space between them. On this it was the intention at some future time to erect a main building. This was never done. A third building was erected on Hamilton Street for a laboratory and dissecting rooms. A botanicaal garden was also laid out. The corner-stone was laid on May 27, 1835, for the two wings of the main building. Dr. Hering delivered in the County Court House an address in German, "Einige worte," etc. The same day a meeting of the Academy Council was held when the following officers were elected: President, Constantine Hering, Philadelphia; Vice-President, John Romig, Allentown; Secretary, Adolphus Bauer, Allentown; Treasurer, Solomon Keek, Allentown. Directors: William Wesselhoeft, Bath; Eberhard Freitag, Bethlehem; Henry Detwiller, Hellertown; Rev. C. Becker, Kreidersville; John Rice, Allentown; C. Pretz, Allentown; Joseph Saeger, Allentown; George Keck, Salzburg. Trustees: William Eckert, Allentown; Rev. Phillip H. Goepp, Bethlehem; Henry Ebner, Allentown; J. V. R. Hunter, Allentown; John J. Krause, Allentown. At the close of this meeting $4000 was subscribed toward the Academy. During the progress of building the Directors and Faculty held meetings in Allentown from time to time. Notices of these may be found in the Correspondenzblatt. On May 25, 1836, the yearly meeting of the stockholders was held and the former officers were re-elected. "As the walls of the Academy were not quite finished, on account of the late spring, the meeting was adjourned to again meet in sixty days in the Academy Building." In the Correspondenzblatt for August, 1836, the following appears: "The North American Academy of the Homœopathic Art of Healing. Incorporated by Act of Legislature of Pennsylvania. Will open its Medical School of Instruction in Allentown, November 1, 1836. Instruction will be given in all branches of the Art of Healing, especially in the Natural Sciences, Anatomy, Surgery, Obstetrics and Homœopathics, in connection with Clinical Practice. There will be yearly courses from November 1st, to August 31st. Facilities have been provided that every one may obtain preliminary instructions in the Ancient and Modern Languages, and in Mathematics. A pamphlet containing the whole curriculum will shortly be issued. Physicians will be introduced into the Homœopathic practice of medicine every year, from June 15th to July 15th, and from December 15th to January 15th. Conditions: Students must make application before November 1st, and will be required to pay $100 before entering, but they have ever after free access to all the lectures. Physicians must pay $50, for which they have the right to attend all the lectures. A. Bauer, Secretary, Allentown, August 10, 1836." The teaching was entirely in German. The Academy was continued but two or three years. The buildings were sold to satisfy a mortgage. The last meeting of the Directors was in 1842. The buildings are still standing. They are situated about thirty feet back from the street, and behind some massive trees. They were for some years used for a Young Ladies' Seminary, but at the present time are school houses. The picture in the front of this book was taken in September, 1891. It shows one of the wings of this Academy. The roof and tower have not been changed, the porch is modern. The roof and tower of the other wing have been rebuilt. The rear of both buildings has been enlarged.

SECTION IX.

HOMŒOPATHIC PHARMACIES.

California.

The first homœopathic pharmacy in California was opened in 1870, by Boericke & Tafel (Francis E. Boericke, A. J. Tafel), at 234 Sutter St., San Francisco. It was called the Pioneer Homœopathic Pharmacy. In the Spring of 1882, it was sold to William Boericke and E. A. Schreck, the firm name becoming Boericke & Schreck. Mr. Schreck died in November, 1886, but the pharmacy was continued under the same name until October, 1890, when E. W. Runyon purchased a half-interest, and the firm name became Boericke & Runyon. It is still continued.

The Pacific Homœopathic Pharmacy was opened at San Francisco, in June, 1880, by Frederick Hiller, Jr., & Co. He continued it until September, 1889, when he sold to A. H. Smith & Co., and it became a general drug store, so continuing until January, 1891, when it was sold to Waller Bros., who, in connection with a drug store, devoted one-half of their premises to a homœopathic pharmacy.

In 1877 Boericke & Tafel opened a pharmacy at the Grand Central Hotel, at 956 Broadway, Oakland. They discontinued it in 1882, selling to Mr. Briggs, their manager. He again sold, in 1886, to Boericke & Schreck.

Connecticut.

The first pharmacy was known as the Good Samaritan Drug Store and Pharmacy. It was opened in Hartford (date unknown) by one Dr. Blake, who continued it for a short time, when he sold it to Dr. Preston, who in turn sold it to George Curtis. He on September 5, 1881, sold to William C. Messenger, who conducted it for three years, when he sold the retail trade to a druggist. It is now situated at Nos. 16 and 18 Kingsley Street, Hartford. In 1857, Dr. Gardner S. Browne for a short time conducted a pharmacy at No. 6 Pearl Street, Hartford.

District of Columbia.

About 1873 a pharmacy was established in Washington City by McPherson & Co. The stock and fixtures were sold out by the sheriff in the spring of 1884.

Boericke & Tafel opened a branch pharmacy in Washington, in July, 1884. It was situated at 938 F Street, N. W. They sold out to Dr. C. W. Roberts and Miss C. V. Dorman, and they took possession April 20, 1889. Miss Dorman had previously been assistant in this pharmacy. The pharmacy is now located at 1007 H Street, N. W. The firm name is Roberts & Co.

In April, 1891, Dr. Roberts sold to Miss Dorman, who continues the business at the old location.

Illinois.

The first pharmacy in Illinois was located in Chicago. As early as 1842, Dr. D. S. Smith sold homœopathic books and medicines. Dr. Shipman also supplied laymen and physicians. In the Chicago Homœopath, vol. 1, No. 6 (1854), can be found an advertisement: "Office of the Chicago Homœopath, 116 La Salle Street, where can be found homœopathic medicines, domestic cases, books, etc."

Braunhold & Sonne, 47 La Salle Street, manufactured homœopathic cases at this time.

As early as 1851 D. B. Cooke & Co., kept a line of homœopathic books at 135 Lake Street.

In October, 1855, Mr. C. S. Halsey, a practical chemist, entered into partnership with Dr. G. E. Shipman, and a pharmacy was opened at the doctor's residence, No. 94 La Salle Street, Chicago. In the spring of 1856 Dr. Shipman sold to Mr. Benjamin Cowell of Providence, R. I. The pharmacy was removed to No. 108 Wells Street, and the firm name became Cowell & Halsey.

In 1858 this firm removed to No. 168 Clark Street. In 1859 Mr. Cowell sold his interest to Mr. Edward King, and for three years the firm name was Halsey & King. This firm issued the first numbers of the Medical Investigator, bi-monthly as a quarto. On December 17, 1861, Mr. King retired and Mr. C. S. Halsey remained at the same location for one year, then removing to the corner of Madison and Clark Streets, where he continued about two years. From there he located at No. 147 Clark Street. In April, 1870, he removed to a larger store at No. 66 Lake Street.

In July, 1871, Mr. C. S. Halsey, on account of ill health, sold out to his brothers, George E. and Tappen Halsey. The new firm was known as Halsey Brothers. C. S. Halsey retained the publishing department.

In October, 1871, the great Chicago fire destroyed the entire establishment. In two weeks a new pharmacy was opened at No. 704 State Street. In 1872 a more commodious pharmacy was opened at No. 72 State Street. Halsey Brothers removed in 1875 to No. 25, and in 1876 to No. 27 Washington Street, where they are now located.

In 1883 G. E. Halsey retired from the firm, Tappen Halsey becoming sole proprietor.

Soon after the fire, 1878, C. S. Halsey opened a small pharmacy at Galesburg, but in November, 1883, he returned to Chicago, and with his brother, George E., opened a pharmacy at No. 12 Madison Street, under the firm name of C. S. & G. E. Halsey. In July, 1884, they removed to No. 88 State Street, up stairs. C. S. Halsey died in the Spring of 1886. Mr. George E. Halsey still continues the pharmacy.

In 1870 G. M. Von Schlieben opened a pharmacy on Monroe Street, removing in 1871 to 148 Dearborn Street. He was burnt out by the great fire, and then located at 13th Street and Wabash Ave., Mr. John H. Delbridge becoming a partner in February, 1872. Mr. Von Schlieben was killed by a locomotive in January, 1873. In February, 1873, Mr. Delbridge took as a partner Mr. Seebach. The firm became Seebach & Delbridge. In the fall of 1873 this firm removed to 168 Clark Street, and in 1874 to 48 Madison Street.

In March, 1877, Dr. J. E. Gross bought out Mr. Seebach, and the firm became Gross & Delbridge. This is known as the Northwestern Homeopathic Pharmacy. It is located at 48 Madison Street.

In 1872 Mr. J. Y. Scammon opened a pharmacy at 283 Cottage Grove Avenue, called the Hahnemann Pharmacy. It was sold to Clindinning & Co. in 1873, and removed to 35 South Clark Street.

In 1874 it was again sold to Dr. Henry N. Small, who, in 1878, sold out to Boericke & Tafel. They removed in 1881 to 234 Wabash Avenue.

Boericke & Tafel removed in 1889 to 36 E. Madison Street, where they have also a western wholesale depot.

In 1876, under the firm name of Duncan Brothers, Dr. T. C. and Mr. David Duncan established a pharmacy at 134 Clark Street, up stairs. In 1882 they removed to 133 and 135 Wabash Avenue. January 1, 1886, they again removed to 54 State Street, up stairs. The firm was soon after this discontinued.

In 1874 Dr. G. E. Shipman established a pharmacy in connection with the Chicago Foundlings' Home, at No. 114 S. Wood Street, but on May 1st, 1879, he sold it to Duncan Brothers.

Mrs. S. H. Scribner opened a pharmacy in 1875 at the corner of Wabash avenue and 21st Street, Chicago. It was continued but a short time.

On May 1, 1887, Ida Hall Roby opened a pharmacy at No. 177 31st Street, Chicago. It is still continued at the same address.

In 1864 Dr. T. D. Williams established a pharmacy at No. 89 Aberdeen Street, Chicago. In 1867 he admitted Mr. William B. Dwight to partnership. They located at No. 240 West Madison Street, with the firm name of Williams & Dwight. They published one number of the Journal of Homœopathic Pharmacy and Materia Medica. This pharmacy was discontinued about 1878.

Charles E. Carley located some years ago at the corner of Fifth and Hampshire Streets, Quincy. He soon sold to a Mr. Christie, who keeps (1890) a general drug store, with some homœopathic medicines.

The data regarding Chicago has been largely taken from Hoyne's Med. Visitor, vol. 2, p. 145. (Chicago Homœopathic Pharmacies. By T. S. Hoyne.) Med. Investigator, vol. 10, p. 207; vol. 11, pp. 196, 522. The Clinique, vol. 4, p. 478.

Indiana.

Dr. Fritzseh opened a homœopathic pharmacy in Indianapolis at 76 E. Ohio Street, about 1874, which is still continued.

On October 1, 1881, Dr. H. J. Needham opened a pharmacy at No. 52 East Market Street, New Albany. He still continues it, at the same time practicing medicine. There are no others in the State.

Iowa.

Drs. E. A. Guilbert and Hatch opened a pharmacy at Dubuque in 1856. Dr. Guilbert became sole proprietor in 1858, and has since continued it. Since 1872 it has been located at the corner of Ninth and Locust Streets.

In 1854 Dr. Lillie established a pharmacy at Dubuque, and in 1856 Dr. Franklin became his partner. They were located on Main street, between Sixth and Seventh Streets. This pharmacy was only continued until 1859.

The Iowa Homœopathic Pharmacy was established by J. E. Caldwell & Co., in Iowa City, in 1881. It was continued about five months. This firm also issued a directory.

Kentucky.

The first homœopathic pharmacy in Kentucky was conducted by Dr. Caspari, who opened it in connection with his office, in 1860, on Jefferson near 3d Street, Louisville. It was continued until his death, in February, 1870.

Perkins & Co. opened a small pharmacy on Walnut street, Louisville, about the year 1875; it was continued for several years.

J. F. Edgar & Co. opened a pharmacy at Lexington, in September, 1882, at No. 49 North Broadway. In December, 1883, they removed to No. 24 East Short Street. In June, 1888, they again removed to 70 and 72 East Main Street, where they are still located. It is known as the Lexington Homœopathic Pharmacy.

There are no others in the State.

Louisiana.

In 1856 Leon & Burritt established a homœopathic pharmacy at No. 137 Carondelet Street, New Orleans. It was continued but a short time.

Dr. de Villeneuve, about 1875, established a small pharmacy in New Orleans. It was continued but six months.

About 1860-61, Dr. A. A. D'Hemicourt opened a pharmacy in

New Orleans. In 1870 it was located at 297 Royal Street. It was closed in the neighborhood of the year 1875, by Dr. D'Hemicourt's death. Dr. Holecombe says, regarding this pharmacy: "D'Hemicourt's was a real pharmacy, long closed, however; D'Hemicourt is dead."

In 1853 Dr. Luyties established a pharmacy at 114 St. Charles Street, New Orleans. He sold to Dr. Richard Angell in 1855. In 1865 his son, Dr. Richard Angell, was placed in charge, and in 1871 this pharmacy was transferred to Dr. Richard Angell, son of the founder, who still continues the business.

In November, 1877, Boericke & Tafel established a branch pharmacy at No. 130 Canal Street, New Orleans. It was under the management of Mr. T. Englebach, who, on March 1, 1884, bought out Messrs. Boericke & Tafel and has since continued it. It is now called Englebach's Homœopathie Pharmacy, and is located at No. 150 Canal Street. (See Boericke & Tafel's Quar. Bulletin, pp. 370, 806.)

There are no other pharmacies in the State.

Maine.

In 1862 Mr. Seavey opened a pharmacy in Portland. He sold out to Dr. S. E. Sylvester in 1877, who still continues it, being also engaged in active practice. It is now located at 412 Congress Street.

There are no others in the State.

Maryland.

In 1835 Mr. J. G. Wesselhoef conducted a book store at No. 17 Point Market Street, which in 1838 was located at the corner of Camden and Eutaw Streets, Baltimore. As at this time he was selling Hering's Domestic Physician with boxes of homœopathic medicines at his stores in Philadelphia and New York, it is probable that these medicines were also sold at the Baltimore store.

The first pharmacy was opened by John Tanner, at the corner of Saratoga and Little Sharp Streets, Baltimore, about 1850. Tanner had been cured by homœopathic treatment when quite a young man, after the old school had given him up. He went to Leipsic and studied homœopathic pharmacy there. Returning to Philadelphia, about 1840, he opened the first homœopathic pharmacy in the country. He removed from Philadelphia to Baltimore. (See PENNSYLVANIA.)

In connection with his Baltimore pharmacy he practiced medicine. He sold out to Dr. Amelia A. Hastings, a lady graduate. In April, 1865, she sold the pharmacy to Dr. Elias C. Price. He kept it for two and a half years, selling to Dr. Boone, who removed it to No. 16 Eutaw Street. It was afterwards removed to Green Street, near Fayette, then back to 19 N. Eutaw Street. Dr. Boone sold out to Mr. F. E. Boericke, of Philadelphia, in 1868. In 1869 the firm became Boericke & Tafel. The pharmacy was soon removed to No. 135 Fayette Street, and later to 228 North Howard Street, where it is now located. It is called the Maryland and Southern Pharmacy and is still conducted by Boericke & Tafel.

There are no others in the State.

Massachusetts.

The first homœopathic pharmacy in New England was opened by Mr. Otis Clapp, in 1840, in Boston. He commenced with a fifty-dollar case of tinctures and triturations, and soon after began to make his own medicines. In 1841 he removed to No. 12 School Street, and in 1855 he located at No. 3 Beacon Street, where he continued until May, 1887, when the main pharmacy was removed to No. 10 Park Square. A retail branch was continued at the old store, No. 3 Beacon Street. The pleasant little room at No. 3 Beacon Street, just round the corner from the noisy stir of Tremont Street, will recall to the minds of many a New England homœopath visions of the past. Tall, genial, with long patriarchal beard and kindly eyes, Mr. Otis Clapp was there to welcome all of us to his pharmacy. On February 1, 1874, the firm name was changed to Otis Clapp & Son, Mr. J. Wilkinson Clapp becoming a member.

In 1845 Mr. Nathaniel C. Peabody opened a pharmacy in Suffolk Place, Boston. In 1850 he removed to No. 56 Beach Street. He had formerly been an apothecary, and advertised as a homœopathic apothecary. After the first few years he prepared his own tinctures and triturations. He was, in 1871, still located at No. 56 Beach Street.

A. A. Reeve opened a homœopathic pharmacy on Tremont Street, Boston, in 1876. His pharmacy was located about two squares from the Homœopathic College. He continued about three years, when he was succeeded by Dr. Gray, who still continues in the business.

Mr. L. W. Loring conducted a pharmacy at No. 134½ Washington Street, Boston, about 1864-65. It was continued but a short time.

In 1866 Dr. S. Whitney opened a pharmacy at No. 3 Tremont Temple, under the direction of the Committee on Pharmacy of the Massachusetts Homœopathic Medical Society. He afterwards removed to 14 Burroughs Place.

He was also Librarian of the Massachusetts Homœopathic Medical Society.

About 1855 Dr. Newton conducted one at Worcester, but sold in 1865 to A. H. Howland & Co. In 1868 Mr. Howland became sole proprietor. The pharmacy was at that time located at No. 174 Main Street, Worcester. On April 14, 1871, he sold to Mr. E. D. Buffington, an allopathic druggist, who soon commenced to manufacture homœopathic tinctures and triturations. He still continues this business in connection with his drug store, being at the present time located at No. 300 Main Street.

Michigan.

The initial homœopathic pharmacy in Michigan was opened by Dr. John Ellis, in Detroit, in 1850. In 1859 Dr. Ellis sold to Dr. E. A. Lodge. It was in 1864 located at No. 266 Jefferson Avenue. About 1866 it was removed to 166 Woodward Avenue, in 1869 to 51 Wayne Street, and in 1870 to 59 Wayne Street. Dr. Lodge continued this pharmacy, and with it a publishing business, at this location until February 1, 1875, when he sold to his son, Albert Lodge, Jr. Dr. Lodge, Sr., removed to Orchard Lake, Mich., where he established a homœopathic laboratory.

In March, 1878, he repurchased the old pharmacy, which was still located at the old number, No. 59 Wayne Street. In May, 1878, he removed to No. 228 Woodward Avenue. Dr. Lodge for many years edited and published The American Homœopathic Observer. In August, 1878, he moved to Pontiac, Mich., where he continued the pharmacy business.

He soon returned to Detroit, where he died on January 25, 1887. His pharmacy was discontinued soon after.

In 1856-57 Messrs. Drake & Foster opened a pharmacy at No. 228 Woodward Avenue, Detroit. In 1859 Dr. H. B. Drake became the proprietor. He continued it at that location until 1882, when he removed to No. 176 Woodward Avenue, and the same year again removed to Nos. 29, 31 State Street. It now became the possession of Garwood N. Sheldon. It is still called the Drake Homœopathic Pharmacy. It is in active operation.

Dr. H. C. Driggs opened a pharmacy in the Masonic Hall Building, Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, in 1852. He soon associated with him Dr. S. B. Thayer, and the firm name became Thayer & Driggs. They were also practitioners of medicine. (See Mich. Jl. Hom'y, 1852.)

In 1873 Benjamin E. Sickler established a pharmacy at No. 164 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

In 1858 A. Farnsworth and A. B. Spinney opened a pharmacy in the Buena Vista Block, East Saginaw. In 1862 Dr. A. Farnsworth became sole proprietor. In 1882 Drs. A. and W. A. Farnsworth organized a partnership. They located at No. 415 Johnson Street. In 1889 the manufacturing department was removed to No. 335 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, with W. A. Farnsworth as the manager. The shipping department and office is still located at East Saginaw, with W. A. Farnsworth as manager. It is in active operation.

Eberbach & Son, manufacturing pharmacists, established since 1843 at No. 12 South Main Street, Ann Arbor, opened a homœopathic department in 1875, in connection with their drug store, which is still continued. Mr. Christian Eberbach was employed in a homœopathic pharmacy in Stuttgart, Germany, over fifty years ago.

The Michigan Homœopathic Pharmacy was organized by J. S. Mortlock & Co., at No. 30 Monroe Street, Grand Rapids, in 1880.

Halsey Bros., of Chicago, have a branch at No. 13 Wilcox Avenue, Detroit.

Minnesota.

Mr. Thomas Gardiner opened a pharmacy at No. 61 Bridge Square, Minneapolis, in May, 1869. After some vicissitudes of fortune he established a paying business, which he still continues at No. 306 Nicollet Avenue.

The St. Paul Homœopathic Pharmacy was opened in 1879 by Dr. W. F. Fiske, on 7th Street, between Sibley and Woconta Streets. After passing through several hands it became, in 1884, the property of W. B. Taylor and Mr. Myers. At this time it was removed to No. 34 West 3d Street; soon after it was again removed to 109 East Seventh Street, its present location. In December, 1886, an incorporated stock company was formed, with a capital of $20,000. This is still in operation, and is called the Taylor & Myers Pharmacy Company.

Boericke & Tafel, in June, 1889, established a pharmacy at No. 416 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis. In December, 1890, it was removed to No. 604 Nicollet Avenue, where it is now located. October 13, 1891, this pharmacy was sold to Babendreier & Van Nest. It is called The Minneapolis Pharmacy Company.

Missouri.

In 1840 Mr. J. G. Wesselhoeft having sold his Philadelphia and New York stores to Mr. Wm. Radde, went to St. Louis, where he opened a bookstore and pharmacy. In 1842 the advertisement appears of Frankson & Wesselhoeft, booksellers, South Second and Market Streets. On the cover of the Family Journal of Homœopathy, St. Louis, February, 1854, is this advertisement: "J. G. Wesselhoeft, No. 79 Market Street, is sole agent in St. Louis for Rademacher & Sheek's Homœopathic Pharmacy in Philadelphia, and keeps constantly on hand all books on homœopathy, homœopathic medicine cases for families and physicians. Also tinctures and triturations."

The next Homœopathic pharmacist in St. Louis was Dr. J. T. Temple. In August, 1847, he established The Southwestern Homœopathic Journal and Review, and in the January number, 1848, the following appears: "Homœopathic Medicine. Persons wishing to obtain homœopathic medicine and books, or either, by applying to the editor of the Journal can be supplied. Cases for domestic use constantly on hand." On March 15th he advertised to supply physicians with two hundred remedies from the first to the thirtieth attenuation. His pharmacy was located at his office, from which he also published the journal, at No. 17 Fifth Street. Dr. Temple began to practice in St. Louis in 1842. On March 15, 1850, Dr. Thomas Haughton became editor of the Journal and as an advertisement of Haughton & Huff, Homœopathic Physicians, appears from No. 17 Fifth Street, it is likely that he also took possession of the pharmacy.

In 1857 the name of Thomas Haughton is given in Smith's Ho-mœopathic Directory as one who would supply homœopathic medicines in St. Louis.

In January or February, 1854, Dr. Temple opened the St. Louis Homœopathic Pharmacy, at 43 North Fifth Street, "up-stairs." The Family Journal of Homœopathy was issued from the same address at the office of Drs. Temple and White. In July, 1854, the pharmacy and office was removed to No. 54 Chestnut Street, between Second and Third Streets. Smith's Homœopathic Directory, 1857, gives, under Pharmacies, the name of D. White, No. 79 Pine Street, St. Louis. He opened this pharmacy in 1856 and continued there about two years.

Strong & Co. opened a pharmacy at No. 51 North Fifth Street about 1859. A reading room at the rear of the pharmacy, containing a file of homœopathic publications, was one of their attractions. They went out of business in 1863.

About 1853 Dr. D. R. Luyties opened a pharmacy at No. 36 South Fourth Street. About 1859 he sold to R. and H. Luyties. At this time the pharmacy was located at No. 23 North Fifth Street. In 1861 it passed into the hands of H. C. G. Luyties, the brother of the doctor. He was located at 51 North Fifth Street. In 1864-5 he removed to No. 49 North Fifth Street, and in 1866 to No. 306 North Fifth Street. He is still at that address, now known as No. 306 North Broadway, St. Louis.

The Western Homœopathic Pharmacy was opened January 1, 1868, at the corner of Fifth and St. Charles Street, by Mr. John W. Munson. In 1875 Mr. W. F. Bockstruck, who had before been manager, became a partner, and the firm name became Munson & Co. In 1877 Mr. Munson sold to Mr. Bockstruck, the firm name continuing as before. In 1871 this pharmacy was removed to No. 411 Locust Street, its present location.

Messrs. Brown & Lathrop opened a pharmacy on Washington Avenue, St. Louis, opposite the Lindell Hotel, in 1864. It was continued but about two years.

The Zwartz Homœopathic Pharmacy Company was incorporated and opened for business November 9, 1890. It is located at the S. E. corner of Fourth and Locust Streets, St. Louis.

In 1881 C. H. Eyermann opened a pharmacy at No. 19 West Ninth Street, Kansas City. This was afterwards sold to Dr. W. E. Taylor, who located at No. 13 West Ninth Street. He left Kansas City in 1880. At present the Kansas City Homœopathic Pharmacy is located at No. 14 West Twelfth Street. It is a Company, J. C. Wise being the manager. It is called the Kansas City Homœopathic Pharmacy Company.

J. Field opened a pharmacy in Kansas City, in 1875.

Nebraska.

A pharmacy was opened November 17, 1881, at No. 1213 O Street, Lincoln, by F. C. Zehrung and L. C. Dunn. The firm name is Zehrung & Dunn. It is still continued.

J. C. Panter opened a homœopathic pharmacy on February 1, 1889, at Omaha. It was called the Omaha Homœopathic Pharmacy. It soon afterwards passed into the hands of the Goodman Drug Company. It is located at No. 1110 Farnam Street.

The Hunter Homœopathic Pharmacy Company opened a Homœopathic Pharmacy in February, 1892, at No. 105 South Fifteenth Street, Omaha.

New Jersey.

In 1869 Mr. Charles Wenz opened a pharmacy at No. 769 Broad Street, Newark. He removed to No. 25 Library Street about the close of the year 1888, where he is at present located. This is known as The New Jersey Homœopathic Pharmacy.

C. D. Warrick opened a pharmacy on March 1, 1892, at No. 257 Washington Street, Newark.

New York.

Mr. J. G. Wesselhoeft certainly sold homœopathic medicines in New York as early as 1835. He was in 1833 a printer and publisher, especially of French and German books, in Philadelphia. He that year (1833) issued a prospectus for a Library of Homœopathia, to be published in five parts and to be edited by Dr. Hering. (See American Journal of Homœopathia, 1835, p. 47.) Dr. Hering's Domestic Physician was issued in 1835, and in Part 1, p. 12, appears the following: "In the United States neat, small cases containing the medicines appertaining to this Domestic Physician can be had of Dr. G. Lingen, of No. 105 North Seventh Street, Philadelphia, and in J. G. Wesselhoeft's Bookstores, No. 9 Bread Street, Philadelphia, and No. 498 Greenwich Street, New York. Also at the Academy, Allentown, Pa. Empty vials can be filled again, if required, at the places mentioned." On the title-page of the same book Mr. Wesselhoeft's address is No. 142 Fulton Street, New York. In an advertisement of eight books on homœopathy that can be found on the last page of the first part of Hering's Homœopathic Domestic Physician the following appears:

"All works on Homœopathy, as well as pocket cases of homœopathic medicine, prepared by approved hands and very neatly arranged, are always to be had at J. G. Wesselhoeft's bookstores, Philadelphia and New York." Mr. Wesselhoeft's New York Store is also advertised in the Allentown Correspondenzblatt, 1835.

McElroy's Philadelphia Directory for 1837 contains the following advertisement: "J. G. Wesselhoeft, Bookseller, Printer in German, English and in French. Editor of the German paper, Die Alte und Neue Welt. Directory and Intelligence Office of the Old and New World, No. 9 Bread Street, near Arch, between Second and Third Streets, Philadelphia. Printing in good style, etc. Agency of the above Paper and Directory, No. 471 Pearl Street, New York; Agent, W. Radde. No. 29 Point Market Street, Baltimore; Agent, G. H. Mittnacht." This advertisement further reads: that Mr.

Wesselhoef kept an Intelligence Office both in Philadelphia and in New York, and the hours in which emigrants, especially Germans, could apply in both cities, are given. Whenever Mr. Radde was Mr. Wesselhoef's clerk in Philadelphia, he had charge of his store and directory in New York as early as 1835. He afterwards bought out the business in both cities. (See PENNSYLVANIA.)

Mr. Radde's advertisement as the successor to Mr. Wesselhoef appears on the cover of the Homœopathic Examiner for June, 1840, at which time he was located at No. 322 Broadway, and was the general agent for the Central Homœopathic Pharmacy of Leipzig, Germany.

In 1855 he removed to No. 300 Broadway, and in 1863 he again removed to No. 550 Pearl Street. He was also the principal publisher of homœopathic books of his time. In 1869 he sold out to the firm of F. E. Boericke and A. J. Tafel (Boericke & Tafel). They soon moved to No. 145 Grand Street. They still continue this store, using it also as a wholesale depot for their extensive import and export trade.

In 1885 Boericke & Tafel established their retail store at No. 7 West Forty-Second Street, New York. Both establishments are still in active operation.

In 1843 Mr John T S. Smith, who was a patient of Dr. A. Gerald Hull, began, at his request, to prepare tinctures and triturations for him and for Dr. J. F. Gray. As soon as the other physicians knew of this work of Mr. Smith, they called upon him for supplies, and persuaded him to devote all of his time to the manufacture of homœopathic medicines. His pharmacy was called Smith's Homœopathic Pharmacy. In May, 1846, it was located at No. 488 Broadway, corner of Broome Street; in June, 1846, it was removed to No. 592 Broadway, in the building adjoining Niblo's Theatre. In the fall of 1846 the theatre was destroyed by fire and the pharmacy with it. In November, 1846, Mr. Smith returned to No. 488 Broadway and shortly afterwards moved to No. 484 Broadway. In 1854 he established a branch at No. 105 Fourth Avenue. In 1868 Dr. H. M. Smith and his brother were admitted to the firm, the firm name becoming J. T. S. Smith & Sons. Mr. J. T. S. Smith retired from business on January 1, 1869, and the firm became: Henry M. Smith & Brother. The pharmacy was removed to No. 107 Fourth Avenue.

It was incorporated in 1872, and Dr. H. M. Smith became President of the Company.

In 1873 a branch was opened at No. 1205 Broadway, on the corner of Twenty-Ninth Street. In July, 1885, the pharmacy was removed to No. 37 West Fourteenth Street, up stairs, where it remained until December, 1885, when it was transferred to No. 61 Fifth Avenue, near Thirteenth Street. In October, 1889, another removal occurred to No. 130 West Twenty-Third Street, its present location.

In December, 1849, a pharmacy was opened at No. 24 North William Street, New York, by J. Edward Stohlmann. (Kirby's Am. Jl. Hom'y, vol. 4, p. 128.)

In July, 1852, Mr. J. T. P. Smith established a pharmacy at No. 50-54 Court Street, corner Livingston Street, Brooklyn. It was called the Brooklyn Homœopathic Pharmacy. At that time he advertised Lehrmann's High Potencies, endorsed by Dr. Carroll Dunham. About 1865 it was sold to the Pierce Brothers, and again, in 1874, to S. G. Clarke.

In 1852 Mr. Charles T. Hurlburt established a pharmacy at No. 437 Broome Street, New York. In 1874 he removed to No. 898 Broadway. In 1879 he removed to No. 15 East Nineteenth Street and in 1881 he settled at No. 3 East Nineteenth Street, where he now remains. A branch store was opened in 1885, at No. 61 West 125th Street Harlem. This branch is now situated at 108 West 125th Street, Harlem.

For a short time, in 1882, Mr. Hurlburt also conducted a branch store at No. 74 Fourth Street, Brooklyn, E. D.

About January 1, 1876, Dr. C. B. Currier opened a pharmacy at No. 1005 Sixth Avenue, New York. (Hom. Times, vol. 5, p. 24.)

A pharmacy was opened at No. 3 Vesey Street, New York, April 1, 1884, by Mr. B. J. Bell, and is still continued at the same place.

In 1879, Mrs. E. D. Clark Armstrong, who had been formerly at No. 3 Vesey Street, established a pharmacy at No. 276 Sixth Avenue, which she still continues.

B. Osann opened the Central Homœopathic Pharmacy, at No. 17 West Forty-Second Street, New York, about 1885.

A pharmacy was opened by Mr. J. O. Noxon, March 1, 1869, at No. 323 Washington Street, Brooklyn. In 1873 it was removed to No. 444 Fulton Street; and in 1883 again removed to No. 676 Fulton Street, where it is still located. It is called The United States Homœopathic Pharmacy.

Lewis H. Smith opened a pharmacy at No. 59 Court Street, Brooklyn, in 1869. He continued it but a short time.

In 1875 W. Sommers opened a pharmacy at No. 120 Fourth Street, Brooklyn; he soon afterwards died, and the pharmacy was discontinued.

Dr. B. Fincke, who practices at No. 122 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, prepares high potencies, which he sells to the profession. He does not keep a pharmacy.

F. P. Carter conducted for a short time a pharmacy in Brooklyn.

Dr. Samuel Swan, of No. 13 West Thirty-Eighth Street, New York, also prepares very high potencies which he sells to the profession. He calls them "Nosodes." He does not keep a pharmacy.

The first pharmacy in Buffalo was opened by Dr. Dioeclesian Lewis (Dio Lewis), in 1850. It was called The Buffalo Homœopathic Pharmacy. Dr. Lewis edited The Homœopathist, and advertisements of this pharmacy may be found in its pages. The offices of the journal were located "in the professional office of Dr. D. Lewis, at the head of the stairs over the post-office, where may be left orders upon the pharmacy."

He prepared his own attenuations and offered them for sale at the rate of 10 cents per vial containing 250 drops of any dilution below the thirtieth. In The Homœopathist, vol. 2, p. 24, he acknowledges a large order from Dr. Joslin, of New York.

In 1864 Mr. Adolph J. Tafel opened a pharmacy at No. 6 East Eagle Street, Buffalo. On April 15, 1867, he sold to Mr. C. S. Halsey, of Chicago. Mr. H. T. Appleby was Mr. Halsey's manager at this store and on June 23, 1870, he bought Mr. Halsey out. Mr. Appleby died in 1889 and the business passed into the hands of Dr. P. A. McCrea. It was located at No. 18 West Eagle Street. In 1892 the pharmacy was removed to No. 362 Main Street, and the name became The Buffalo Homœopathic Pharmacy. It is conducted by Dr. McCrea and C. F. Buck.

October 1, 1891, Halsey Brothers opened a pharmacy at 535 Washington Street, Buffalo.

About 1851 Dr. David A. Baldwin opened the Rochester Homœopathic Pharmacy, at No. 17 Arcade Street, Rochester. He continued it a few years.

In 1856 James Bryan, Operative Chemist and Druggist, at No. 68 State Street, Rochester, conducted as an adjunct to his regular store, The Rochester Homœopathic Pharmacy, under the direction of Dr. L. D. Fleming.

Smith's Directory of 1857 gives the name of E. W. Farrington as a pharmacist, located at 68 State Street, Rochester.

As early as 1845 Myers & Wynkoop sold homœopathic books at their bookstore in Syracuse.

In 1877 Tucker & Fitch established a homœopathic pharmacy at No. 26 Warren Street, Syracuse.

Dr. H. R. Smith at one time conducted a pharmacy at his residence in Brockport.

About 1865 E. B. Sprague conducted a pharmacy at the corner of Front and Court Streets, Owego.

Ohio.

The first homœopathic pharmacy in Ohio was opened by B. H. Bartlett in 1846, at the corner of Superior Street and Public Square, Cleveland.

Wm. Fiske conducted a drug store about 1850, at 119 Superior Street. He afterwards took John Hall as a partner, under the name of Fiske & Hall. On January 1, 1853, the partnership was dissolved and Dr. Hall established himself in the second story of No. 72 Superior Street. He soon afterwards sold to his son, John B. Hall, who removed to No. 17 Monument Park.

In 1865 John B. Hall sold to Drs. D. H. Beckwith and N. Schneider, who assumed the firm name of Beckwith & Co. On January 1, 1867, Dr. T. P. Wilson became a partner. In 1868 S. R. Beckwith bought the pharmacy, taking as a partner L. H. Witte, under the firm name of Witte & Co.

In 1869 Mr. Witte bought out Dr. Beckwith, and has since that time been sole proprietor. In 1876 this pharmacy was removed to its present quarters, No. 350 Superior Street.

In 1881 Dr. J. Pettet established a pharmacy at No. 77 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland. He removed in May, 1882, to 368 Euclid Avenue, and soon after again removed to 295 Erie Street, where he is now located.

In 1845 J. F. Desilver opened a pharmacy at No. 112 Main Street, Cincinnati. He was agent for the Leipzig Pharmacy.

Dr. H. F. Davis opened a Pharmacy at No. 133 Main Street, Cincinnati, in July, 1849. It was continued but a short time. He also conducted a free dispensary for cholera patients. (See Kirby's American Journal of Homœopathy, vol. 4, p. 160.) He sold out to Dr. Parks.

In the Cincinnati Journal of Homœopathy, vol. 1, p. 96, appears the following: "Dr. Parks having bought Dr. Davis's pharmacy and entirely resigned out-door practice, will prepare prescriptions at the pharmacy." This was about August, 1851. In 1853 this was called Parks' Central Homœopathic Pharmacy. It was located at No. 133 Main Street.

In 1863 George W. Smith and A. F. Worthington bought out Dr. Parks and continued the business as Smith & Worthington, until 1873, when they dissolved partnership, Mr. Smith remaining at the old location and Mr. Worthington opening a pharmacy at No. 170 West Fourth Street.

In February, 1892, Boericke & Tafel bought Mr. Worthington out, and thoroughly restocked the pharmacy. They are located on the same premises.

Dr. S. Bailey opened a small pharmacy at No. 209 St. Clair Street, Toledo, in 1865. He died about 1882.

Dr. G. Wolff conducted a pharmacy at Zanesville for a short time in 1886.

A Mr. Hernig had for a short time a pharmacy at Wheeling.

T. L. A. Greve conducted a pharmacy at the S. W. corner of Sixth and John Streets, Cincinnati.

Oregon.

In August, 1882, Mr. Paul J. A. Semler opened a pharmacy at Portland. He is now located at No. 171 Fourth Street. The name of this is The Portland Homœopathic Pharmacy and People's Dispensary. In the ten years of its existence the homœopathic physicians of Portland have increased from four to about thirty.

In March 25, 1891, Boericke & Runyon opened a branch pharmacy at No. 103 Washington Street, Portland. It is under the care of Mr. Breckenfield.

Pennsylvania.

J. G. Wesselhoeft, in 1833, or earlier, conducted bookstores at Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore. He published Everest's Popular View of Homœopathy in 1835. He was located in Philadelphia at No. 9 Bread Street. He also sold homœopathic medicines. (See NEW YORK.)

Dr. George Lingen also sold them at the same time at No. 105 North Seventh Street. They were also sold at the "Academical Bookstore," Allentown. Dr. Lingen later went South. Dr. Malcolm Macfarlan says, that in 1862-63, Dr. George Lingen, the G. Lingen of the earlier times, was practicing medicine at Mobile, Ala., and that he had the principal practice. He died in that city.

On the title page of the German edition of Hering's Domestic Physician, 1837, appears the following: "Allentaun an der Lecha, zu haben bei Jacob Behlert." Jacob Behlert's advertisement of this book also can be found in the Correspondenzblatt February 8, 1837. He also made homœopathic cases for the book. As late as 1844 the firm name of J. Behlert & J. Bauersachs appears in the Philadelphia directory. They were then located at No. 260 Market Street. On the title page of the second edition of Hering's Domestic Physician (1844) is an advertisement: "Sold by Jacob Behlert & J. N. Bauersachs, No. 260 Market Street, in English and German, with boxes of medicine accompanying each book. For the genuineness of these medicines thus put up reference is given to Dr. Hering."

About the year 1838 Dr. John Tanner returned from Leipzig where he had been a student of the Leipzig Homœopathic Pharmacy, and opened The United States Homœopathic Pharmacy at No. 104 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia. In a book called The Homœopathist's Pocket Reference, published by John Tanner, in 1838, he claims that his is the only homœopathic pharmacy in the United States. In the Homœopathic Examiner, January, 1840, p. 56, the following appears, written by Dr. A. G. Hull, the editor:

"Homœopathic Pharmacy. The success of the homœopathist, next to his dependence on the principle of the system, is indispensably affected by the purity of his medicines. Imperfect or impure articles of the materia medica heretofore procured from uncertain sources have frequently discouraged the practitioner. With sincere pleasure we are enabled to announce that this impediment to the healing art has been effectually removed. Dr. Tanner, of Philadelphia, with untiring energy and at great expense, has established a pharmacy exclusively devoted to the preparation of homœopathic medicines. All his crude exotic articles are imported from the Leipzig Homœopathic Pharmacy, and the indigenous medicines are collected by himself, while the dilutions and triturations are the work of his own hands. We have proved many of the doctor's preparations, and can commend them with confidence. Every physician, therefore, who has the least distrust as to the medicines he may be using, should at once perfect his pharmacopœia from this source, and the homœopaths should cordially unite to sustain so praiseworthy an enterprise. For the details the reader is referred to the cover of this journal."

Dr. Tanner went to Baltimore in 1850, establishing a pharmacy in that city. He also practiced medicine both in Philadelphia and Baltimore.

In Curie's Domestic Homœopathy, edited by Gideon Humphrey, Philadelphia, 1839, may be found the following advertisement:

"Medicine chests containing the medicines recommended in this book can be found at the office of Dr. Jonas Green, No. 206 Pine Street. Price, $5."

About 1839 or 1840, J. G. Wesselhoeft removed from 9 Bread Street to No. 124 North Second Street, Philadelphia. About 1835 Mr. William Radde, his clerk, went to New York and took possession of his New York branch.

At the end of a list of books the following note appears: "The above works may also be had of J. G. Wesselhoeft, 124 North Second Street, Philadelphia." Not long after this, Mr. Wesselhoeft sold his interests in Philadelphia and New York to Mr. William Radde and removed to St. Louis and there established a pharmacy and bookstore. He died some years later in that city.

In the Homœopathic Examiner for June, 1840, appears an advertisement on the cover of the journal of: "William Radde's Foreign Bookstore, 322 Broadway, New York, Importer of German, French, Italian, Spanish, Latin, Greek, Arabic, Sanscrit, and other books." He also advertises imported homœopathic medicines and tinctures in their different triturations and dilutions. Pocket cases, physicians' cases, etc., etc. Sugar of milk, vials, corks, diet papers, labels, etc.

In 1843 Mr. Charles L. Rademacher opened a pharmacy at No. 39 North Fourth Street, between Arch and Cherry Streets, Philadelphia. In the Philadelphia Directory for 1843 he advertises different preparations of homœopathic medicines, tinctures, triturations, medicated pellets, etc., etc., with all books on homœopathy in general, constantly on hand.

In 1848 Dr. Jacob Sheek became his partner, and they soon located at No. 239 Arch Street (Mulberry); (this is the present number 635.)

Mr. Rademacher withdrew from the firm in 1855 and died in 1861.

Dr. Sheek continued the business until his own death, which occurred on January 1, 1858. William Radde, Jr., son of William Radde, the assistant of Mr. Wesselhoeft, bought Dr. Sheek's stock, and continued in the same place until his death in 1862.

Dr. Francis E. Boericke succeeded him at the same location. In 1869 he formed a partnership with Mr. Adolph J. Tafel, under the firm name of Boericke & Tafel.

In 1845 Dr. Jenichen sent a series of his high potencies to Dr. C. J. Hempel for sale. (See Homœopathic Examiner, 1845, n. s., vol. 1, pp. 48, 96.)

Dr. Hempel announces that physicians who wish to try the high potencies may procure complete sets of 468 vials containing from 1200 to 1400 globules. Price, $110. Dr. Hempel, 93 Spring Street, Philadelphia.

In 1852 Matthews & Houard opened a pharmacy at Eighth and Spruce Streets, Philadelphia (265 South Eighth). Mr. Houard was the manager. Houard retired from the firm, and Mr. Matthews sold to George Edwards, who, in 1857, sold to F. E. Boericke.

In 1856 Dr. Henry S. Lentz prepared high potencies that he sold at his residence, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. He was endorsed by the Faculty of the Homœopathic Medical College of Pennsylvania.

In 1853 Francis E. Boericke and Rudolph Tafel, trading as Boericke & Tafel, opened a store at No. 24 South Fifth Street for the sale of homœopathic medicines. Mr. Rudolph Tafel withdrew from the firm at the end of 1853. In the Homœopathic News, Philadelphia, 1854, p. 2, it is stated that this pharmacy was under the personal direction of Dr. Constantine Hering. A circular was issued at the time stating the fact that the most of the stock of medicines was from the private pharmacy of Dr. Hering. This circular (a broadside) contains a list of the medicines for sale.

When Dr. Hering came from Germany, he brought with him a set of homœopathic medicines put up for him by Dr. Lappe, of Neu Didendorf, the first homœopathic pharmacist. They consisted of tinctures and triturations. They were in curious ounce bottles with long necks, and having a body shaped like a stone-mason's mallet, the neck corresponding to the handle. This set he turned over to the pharmacy. The medicines used in his domestic cases were of the thirtieth potency.

The publication office and pharmacy at No. 24 South Fifth Street was burned on December 14, 1854. On p. 28 of the Homœopathic News is a note: "The publication office of this paper was burnt out on the 14th inst. A friend of Boericke & Tafel, Mr. John Keffer saved, together with almost all the contents of the store, all the back numbers of the News, the subscription list, and most of the invaluable original preparations of homœopathic medicines deposited there for such physicians as wish the lower dilutions. The high potencies have that heavenly quality which never can be destroyed by fire."

Mr. A. J. Tafel says: "This fire occurred about twelve o'clock at night. I was an apprentice in the business then. I remember we had been engaged in wrapping for the mail the monthly numbers of the News, as was our custom, at the house of Dr. Hering. We heard the fire bells on the way home and for some time afterwards, but did not know where the fire was until in the morning, when a friend came to the house with the news. The store was burned completely to the ground. Everything was saved by our good friend, Mr. John Keffer, who had the goods carried to the Brown Building, then in process of completion, at the corner of Fifth and Arch Streets."

On January 1, 1855, the pharmacy was again opened at No. 18 South Seventh Street. Dr. Boericke removed in 1857 to No. 511 Chestnut Street, where he remained for several years. While there he issued a broadside: "A Complete List of all the Medicines used in Homœopathy up to Date." About 1860 he removed to No. 34 South Seventh Street, and in 1861 to No. 48 North Ninth Street.

During the year 1859 Dr. F. E. Boericke established a small pharmacy at No. 1113 Spring Garden Street. This was continued for two years.

In September, 1863, Dr. Boericke sold the Ninth Street pharmacy to Mr. Adolph J. Tafel, Dr. Boericke succeeding to the store formerly belonging to William Radde, Jr., at No. 635 Arch Street.

In 1866 a small pharmacy was located on Ridge Avenue, near Tenth Street. It was continued but a few months.

The Philadelphia Directory for 1860 gives the name of Belknap & Co., at No 527 North Second Street as dealers in homœopathic medicines.

In November, 1878, Mr. James Kemble opened a pharmacy at No. 1804 Columbia Avenue, Philadelphia. In April, 1881, A. Arthur Jones bought him out, continuing until July 1, 1889. The firm name was A. Arthur Jones & Co., Manufacturing Chemists. The wholesale manufacturing business was begun in January, 1887. It was continued but a short time.

In 1880 a small pharmacy was established on Frankford Avenue near Vienna Street. It lasted but a few weeks.

In October, 1877, Dr. Frank J. Slough opened a pharmacy at No. 845 Hamilton Street, Allentown. He still continues it at the same location.

In 1878 Dr. J. G. Crosscup opened a pharmacy in Reading. He sold in 1883-4 to Dr. L. J. Knerr who is now located at No. 712 Penn Avenue.

In 1850 J. G. Backofen put in a line of homœopathic supplies at No. 93 Smithfield Street, Pittsburgh, continuing to sell homœopathic medicines until Boericke & Tafel's branch pharmacy was established in that city.

Dr. W. T. H. O'Keefe & Co., established in 1875 a small pharmacy at 720 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh.

Dr. William Raymer conducted in 1889 in connection with his practice, a pharmacy at No. 1118 Seventh Avenue, Beaver Falls.

In 1869 Francis E. Boericke and Adolph J. Tafel formed a partnership with the firm name of Boericke & Tafel. They continued both the Arch Street and Ninth Street pharmacies. In 1873 the Ninth Street pharmacy was removed to No. 125 South Eleventh Street.

Boericke & Tafel exhibited at the World's Centennial Exhibition, at Philadelphia, in 1876, a very elaborate display of homœopathic preparations. The exhibit contained a complete set of homœopathic tinctures and triturations, with copies of all the homœopathic books and periodicals owned and published by this firm. The very handsome black walnut case in which these articles were shown is now used in the pharmacy at 1011 Arch Street, Philadelphia. They received a prize medal and diploma, the only one awarded for homœopathic preparations.

In 1878 this firm received "Honorable Mention" from the judges at the Paris Exposition.

In 1873 the Chili Exposition conferred a diploma "For Excellence of Homœopathic Medicine."

The New Orleans "Cotton Exposition," in May, 1885, awarded three gold medals, as follows: One for "Sugar Pellets of Perfect Uniformity and Purity of Material." One "for Sugar of Milk of Superior Quality." One for "Superior Quality of Homœopathic Medicine and for Rich Exhibit."

In 1881 the old pharmacy that had for thirty-three years been conducted at No. 635 Arch Street was removed to a newly-fitted building at No. 1011 Arch Street. This is three stories high and contains ample room for the extensive laboratories and salesroom of this busy firm. This is the laboratory and general depot. (For description of this building, see Hahnemannian Monthly, August, 1881.)

On January 1, 1883, the partnership existing between Dr. F. E. Boericke and Mr. A. J. Tafel expired by limitation, and Dr. Boericke retired to devote himself to the homœopathic publishing business. He now established The Hahnemann Publishing House.

A new firm was formed, consisting of A. J. Tafel, Frank L. and Felix Boericke, under the old firm name of Boericke & Tafel. (See Boericke & Tafel's Quarterly Bulletin, p. 699.) On January 1, 1891, Mr. Adolph L. Tafel was admitted to the firm.

It may not be amiss to state that Mr. Adolph J. Tafel is a member of the Pharmaceutical Examining Board of Pennsylvania. He was appointed by the Governor, June 23, 1887, and has held the position ever since. (See LEGISLATION, PENNSYLVANIA.)

BRANCHES.

In 1869 Boericke & Tafel bought out William Radde, of New York, removing the store from No. 550 Pearl Street to No. 145 Grand Street, where it is still continued, being the wholesale import and export depot of the firm. The laboratory and general depot is at No. 1011 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

In 1870 a branch was opened at No. 234 Sutter Street, San Francisco. Sold in 1882 to Boericke & Schreck.

About 1868 Dr. Boericke bought out Dr. Boone at No. 19 N. Eutaw Street, Baltimore, and when he entered into partnership with Mr. Tafel this pharmacy became a branch under the firm name.

In 1877 a branch store was opened in the Grand Central Hotel No. 956 Broadway, Oakland, California. This was sold in 1882 to Mr. Briggs.

In November, 1877, a branch was organized at No. 130 Canal Street, New Orleans, La. It was sold to Mr. Engelbach in 1884. (Quarterly Bulletin, p. 370.)

In 1878 they bought out Dr. H. N. Small, at No. 35 S. Clark Street, Chicago. This is now located at No. 36 East Madison Street, and is known as the Western Wholesale Depot.

In 1881 a branch store was opened at No. 1216 Girard Avenue under the charge of Mr. A. Schafer. It was sold to A. Otto Vischer, on March 1, 1884, who has since conducted the pharmacy under his own name at the above address.

On March 15, 1884, the branch at No. 125 South Eleventh Street was removed to 1035 Walnut Street, and in October, 1890, again removed to No. 1409 Chestnut Street, where it now is located.

In the spring of 1883 a branch pharmacy was opened at No. 51 Sixth Avenue, Pittsburgh, by invitation of the Allegheny County Homœopathic Medical Society. It is called the Branch for Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Virginia. It is now located at No. 627 Smithfield Street. (Quarterly Bulletin, p. 733.)

A branch was opened at No. 938 F Street, Washington, D. C., in July, 1884. It was sold to Roberts & Co. in 1889.

In 1885 an uptown retail branch was established at No. 7 West Forty-second Street, New York City. It is still continued.

In 1889 a pharmacy was started at No. 416 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn. It was sold to Babendreier & Van Nest, in 1891.

In February, 1892, the firm succeeded to the old established business of A. F. Worthington & Co., at 170 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, which is continued on the same premises.

Boericke & Tafel do a very extensive business. Beside the laboratory and general depot at Arch Street and the export and import depot at Grand Street, New York, they have six branches in active operation. They are also very extensive publishers. Their last catalogue of books and medicines and other articles contains 164 large octavo pages.

They also issue various Medical Indexes for gratuitous circulation. This firm prepares neat counter cases for the regular druggists in which are an assortment of the common homœopathic remedies put up in the form of dilutions and medicated pellets in amber colored vials secured from the air by metallic caps. On the labels are the name and potency of the drug and the proper dose for adults and children. In the Quarterly Bulletin for November, 1885, a list is given of 238 druggists in different parts of the country who handle Boericke & Tafel's physicians' supplies in the original packages supplied by that firm.

Rhode Island.

The first pharmacy devoted to homœopathy was opened at 239 Westminster Street, Providence, in 1854, by Wm. B. Hamlin. In 1858 he removed to 48 Westminster Street and in 1860 to 24 Market Square. He sold out in December, 1866, to Wm. E. Clarke who conducted an allopathic drug store in the front store and the homœopathic pharmacy in a rear room; both departments were carefully kept. Mr. Clarke after a time sold out and the pharmacy after passing through various hands was discontinued.

Mr. Hamlin was Provost Marshal with the rank of Captain for the Eastern District of Rhode Island, during the war and performed the duties of that office besides attending to his pharmacy. Mr. Clarke also held a Colonelship and some City Offices.

In 1875 Henry J. Denham formerly with Caldwell & Hazard, Newport, opened a pharmacy at 174 Broad Street, Providence. The Homœopathic Dispensary occupied rooms in the rear of his store. This continued for two years when Mr. Denham commenced the practice of medicine which he still continues.

December 1, 1877, Otis Clapp & Son, of Boston, opened a branch pharmacy at 280 Westminster Street, Music Hall Building, placing it under the charge of Mr. Charles W. Bowen. The Dispensary was removed to the same building. In a year the pharmacy was removed to 307 Westminster Street, where it still continues.

(The data for the above was furnished by Dr. G. B. Peck.)

Texas.

The Texas Homœopathic Pharmacy was opened at No. 914 Congress Street, Austin, in March, 1884, by Dr. H. F. Fisher. He sold it shortly afterward and about August, 1885, it was removed to No. 720 Congress Street. It is still in active operation.

West Virginia.

Dr. E. I. Hennig opened a pharmacy in Wheeling in April, 1879. It has always been, and now is located at No. 24 Eleventh Street. There are no others in the State.

Wisconsin.

J. S. Douglas opened the Milwaukee Homœopathic Pharmacy in 1844. In 1857 he took as a partner Dr. Greaves. Dr. Tracy was at one time associated with Dr. Douglas.

In 1866 the firm consisted of Drs. J. S. Douglas and G. W. Perrine, and the pharmacy was located at 159 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee.

In 1872 a partnership was formed between Drs. J. S. Douglas and Lewis Sherman at 149 Wisconsin Street.

In 1875 Dr. Douglas retired and Dr. Sherman has since continued the pharmacy, which is still in active operation.

Later it was removed to 171 Wisconsin Street and in May, 1889, to the present location at 448 Jackson Street, Milwaukee.

Most of these Pharmacies have issued Annual Circulars and elaborate Price Lists of Books and Medicines, many of them issuing Yearly Catalogues. Some of them have also published Periodicals from time to time for Advertising Purposes.

SECTION X.

MEDICAL LEGISLATION.

CONTAINING A BRIEF SYNOPSIS OF THE LAWS REGULATING THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE IN THE VARIOUS STATES.

Since the homœopathic system has so rapidly gained favor with the people of the United States, there has been a continuous effort on the part of the allopathic school to debar homœopathic physicians from their just and equal rights, as American citizens.

Homœopathy has been excluded from the army, and, with a few exceptions, from National and State Institutions.

It is exceptional for a State to subsidize a homœopathic hospital or college, although in many communities the majority of the taxpayers are of the homœopathic belief. In a few cases State aid has been given.

Homœopathy has also gained a foothold in several State Universities.

Of late the efforts of the allopathic school to retain the excess of power have greatly increased.

In a large number of States the practice of medicine is now governed by certain laws.

Examining boards consisting of a certain number of physicians usually members of State Societies, are appointed, whose duty is to examine candidates, graduate and non-graduate, and certify to their fitness to practice medicine. It has been the aim by having these examining boards composed exclusively of allopathic physicians, to control the medical licensure, and to debar at pleasure the graduates of homœopathic colleges from practicing.

On the other hand the members of the homœopathic school while approving of the restriction of medical practice by careful laws, have demanded that there be two or more State boards of medical examiners—both homœopathic and allopathic—so that the candidate may be examined by members of his own school of medicine.

The American Institute of Homœopathy and the various State Homœopathic Societies, have exerted influence to secure just and equal rights.

In January, 1878, the Committee on Legislation appointed by the American Institute of Homœopathy, of which T. S. Verdi was Chairman, issued a Circular with the following Questions ;

"1. Does there exist any legislation in your State or Territory discriminating in favor of or against any school of medicine?

2. Does there exist any legislation in the same affecting the homœopathic school or its practitioners, directly or indirectly?

3. Is there any State Board of Health in your State, or local board in your city? And if so, in what manner do those boards affect the homœopathic school?

4. Have any homœopathic physicians in your State or County been appointed to any position of honor and trust by the officials of the same, and what are such positions?

5. What legislation, if any, is needed in your State or Territory, to secure to homœopathic physicians all rights and privileges granted to other medical men?

6. Will you answer, or will your Medical Society instruct its Secretary or its Committee on Legislation to answer these questions in a concise manner, and give such other information as may be of interest to our school, and forward the same to the undersigned?

7. Will your Medical Society instruct its Committee on Legislation to act as a sub-committee of the Committee on Legislation of the American Institute of Homœopathy, and correspond with the same?

Answers to the above are required to enable the Legislative Committee of the American Institute of Homœopathy to make a comprehensive report regarding these matters which are of such vital importance to our school in this country.

Such knowledge, and the co-operation of all homœopathic physicians, and of organized societies particularly, will give us a great advantage in the battle for our rights.

The allopathic school is hard at work, and through the recommendations and efforts of the U. S. Medical Association, local societies and individuals, they are attempting to undermine our interests in the States by the creation of State Boards of Health, which assume the right, often conceded to them by legislative enactment, to regulate the practice of medicine."

During the winter of 1888-89, by a united movement of the allopathic school, bills were introduced into the Legislatures of the following States: Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Florida, Tennessee, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Nebraska, Montana, California.

The object of these bills was to establish in each State a so-called single examining board, to be composed exclusively of allopathic physicians and with full power to refuse licenses to physicians of other schools according to their own sweet and regular will. In Montana and Tennessee such bills were passed. Single allopathic examining boards also exist in Alabama, South Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, and West Virginia. In the other States through the concerted efforts of the homœopaths, the bill was defeated, and a bill providing a separate homœopathic examining board was adopted.

In New York, the new law ordains three Boards: Allopathic, Homœopathic and Eclectic.

The law just passed in Maryland is of interest from the fact that by its requirements the allopathic school has been compelled to concede the same rights that they demand for themselves. It was approved March 25, 1892.

The following pages present a condensation of the medical laws of each State. No attempt has been made to tabulate the great number of circulars and pamphlets issued on homœopathic legislation.

Each State has its own bibliography of circulars, legislative bills, pamphlets, and newspaper articles. The titles of a few of them may be found under ANONYMOUS BOOKS, p. 286.

A National Association of Members of Committees on Medical Legislation of the American Institute of Homœopathy, was formed at the Quadrennial Meeting of the American Institute at Atlantic City, June, 1891. (See page 365, this book.)

Alabama.

No person may practice medicine without a certificate from a Board of Examiners; said Examiners to be composed of the Board of Censors of the allopathic State and County Societies. The County Board examine graduates; the State Board, non-graduates.

A license fee of $1 is charged. The penalty for non-fulfillment is $100 for each offence. If the fine be not paid, one year in jail. All who were in actual practice in 1877, received certificates without examination. Approved February 9, 1877.

The Situation in Alabama: South. Jl. Hom'y, April, 1888, May, 1890, June, July, 1890; Dr. Lyon's Case, December, 1890.

Arizona.

Each physician must have a reputable diploma. He must file a copy of his diploma in the office of the County Recorder, and pay a registration fee of $5. Physicians who have been in active practice for ten years, three of the time in this State are exempt from this law. Penalties: $50 to $1000, or six months imprisonment, or both. Approved May 1, 1881.

Arkansas.

Has a Board of three Examiners in each County, appointed by the County Judge. They meet quarterly. The fee for registration is $1.50 and also $6.00 to be divided among the Medical Board, it being all they receive. An appeal may be made to a State Board of five. The Boards are changed every five years. Examiners may consist of any reputable physicians. The penalty is from $10 to $100, for each offence.

See South. Jl. Hom'y, March, 1891.

California.

In 1875 efforts were made to have an act passed requiring all practitioners to obtain a certificate from a board of allopathic examiners.

In 1886, through efforts made by the homœopaths, an Act was passed as follows: The California Medical Society, the Eclectic Medical Society and the California State Homœopathic Medical Society were authorized to appoint annually a Board of seven members chosen from the three schools. This Board examines diplomas and on payment of $5, issues certificates if the diplomas are genuine. If not genuine $20 is charged. The applicant must prove identity. Certificates are refused for unprofessional conduct.

The certificates are recorded in the county in which the holder practices. The penalty is $50 to $500, or imprisonment 30 days to one year.

A number of protests and circulars were issued in 1876 by the homœopaths to favor the representation of their school in the laws passed.

After April 1, 1891, all diplomas must come from colleges requiring three years' study, with three regular courses of lectures delivered during three separate years. Approved January 4, 1888.

Colorado.

The law requires a State Board of Medical Examiners appointed by the Governor, consisting of nine physicians, six Allopaths, two Homœopaths, one Eclectic. Graduates must present diplomas for verification, or furnish other evidence of having graduated. They will then be entitled to a certificate from the State Board, which must be deposited in the Office of the County Clerk, and a fee of one dollar paid. Practitioners of ten years are entitled to certificates. Non-graduates must pass an examination before the State Board. Fees: Graduates, or practitioners, of ten years, $5. Non-graduates, $10.

Graduates present diplomas and pay a fee of $5 for their certificate. Non-graduates must pass an examination before the full Board, paying $10 in advance. Practitioners of ten years are entitled to a certificate. Certificates must be registered in the practitioner's county, the fee being $1. The penalty is $50 to $300, or 10 to 30 days in jail. Approved March 14, 1881.

Connecticut.

There are no Laws affecting the Practice of Medicine.

Dakota.

No Special Legislation.

Delaware.

In 1876 the law was that no one not a practitioner before 1862 could practice without passing an Allopathic Board of three. This was afterwards modified to favor Homœopaths and Eclectics. Since April 19, 1883, no one who has not been eight years in practice is allowed to practice without a diploma. The Board of Medical Examiners is required to grant certificates to all graduates of respectable medical colleges. Physicians must register in their own counties. The penalty is $100 to $500.

District of Columbia.

The Law requires that a Board of five be appointed by the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, that intending practitioners must produce a reputable diploma, pay a fee not exceeding $10 and receive a certificate. No one who has not studied medicine three years can be examined. Approved July 7, 1838.

Florida.

On May 31, 1889, a law was passed providing for a Board of Allopathic Medical Examiners for each of the seven Judicial Boards in the State. They are appointed by the Governor, who also appoints a separate State Board of Homœopathic Examiners. Each Board consists of three reputable physicians. Applicants must present a diploma and also pass an examination before some one of these boards. Certificates must be filed with the Clerk of the County. Examining fee is $10. Without a diploma none can apply for examination. Practitioners previous to the passage of this act, if possessing a diploma, are exempt from its demands. The Homœopathic Board also examines Eclectic physicians. Penalty: $50 to $200, or six months in jail, or both.

Medical Legislation in Florida: South. Jl. Hom'y, April, 1890, December, 1885. (H. R. Stout.)

Georgia.

Any person holding a reputable diploma may, after registering in his own County, practice. The fee is 50 cents. The State and County tax is $10 per year. Penalty: $100 to $200, or 30 to 90 days in jail, or both. Approved September 28, 1881. Since then a single Examining Board has been established.

South. Jl. Hom'y, December, 1889.

Idaho.

No one may practice medicine without a diploma. Physicians must be identified, and file a copy of their diplomas with the County Recorder. Practitioners of ten years are exempt. Penalty: $50 to $500, or thirty days to six months in jail, or both, with also prosecution for felony. Approved in 1887.

Illinois.

A State Board of Health was organized in June, 1877, consisting of seven members appointed by the Governor; each member acts for seven years. This Board issues three forms of medical certificates, viz.: For persons holding diplomas; for candidates examined and favorably passed upon; for persons who have been in practice upward of twenty-three years. All intending practitioners holding diplomas must present them to this Board of Health for verification, and on payment of a fee of $5 are entitled to a certificate. Non-graduates must pass an examination, and the fee for their certificate is $20. Practitioners of ten to twenty years are simply required to prove that fact.

All certificates must be registered with the Clerk of the County in which the person intends to practice.

Penalties: $100 to $200, and imprisonment for forgery. Approved June 16, 1887.

All intending practitioners, after 1890, must either present evidence of having studied medicine for four years and taken three full courses of lectures of five months each, or must pass an examination before the State Board of Health.

Data in: Cincinnati J. Hom'y, vol. 1, p. 159, (1851); Hahnemann College and the Illinois State Board of Health, U. S. Med. Investigator, vol. 9, p. 515.

Indiana.

Intending practitioners must prove identity and exhibit a reputable diploma, paying $1 for certificate and registration. Persons who have been in practice for ten years in this State, or for three years before the passage of this Act, and who have attended one college course, may receive a license on the above terms. Penalty: $10 to $200. Approved September, 1885.

Homœopathy in Indiana State University, O. Med. Surg. Reporter, vol. 3, p. 70.

Iowa.

Has a State Board of Medical Examiners before whom diplomas must be verified. Non-graduates, unless practitioners for twelve years, must pass a written examination, all receiving similar questions, the various papers to be identified by numbers. Approved April 9, 1886. Examination fee: for graduates, $2; for non-graduates, $15.

After 1891 all applicants must have studied four years and taken three full courses of lectures of six months each, or must pass an examination before the State Board of Examiners.

Certificates must be registered within sixty days in the Office of the County Clerk. Penalties: $50 to $100 or ten to thirty days in jail.

Legislation in Iowa, Northwest. Annalist, vol. 1.

Kansas.

The Homœopathic, Allopathic and Eclectic Societies each appoint a Board of Examiners. These Boards may issue certificates to holders of diplomas, or to applicants passing an examination by either Board. Approved in 1879.

Kentucky.

After April 1, 1889, no person may practice medicine who has not exhibited and registered a copy of his diploma in the office of the Clerk of his own County. If the diploma has been granted by a college in some other State it must be certified to and endorsed by a legally chartered Medical School or Medical Society in Kentucky. Approved April 25, 1888.

By the law of 1874 all in active practice were exempt; practitioners of five years were given one year to comply with the law. Penalty: $50 to $100.

Louisiana.

No person is allowed to practice without making affidavit in his own County that he has a reputable diploma, said diploma containing the endorsement of the State Board of Health.

This affidavit must be recorded; the fee is $1.50. The affiant must send the original affidavit, endorsed by the parish clerk, to the State Board of Health. This law exempts persons who have practiced without diplomas in this State for five years before its passage. Also reputable graduates of ten years' practice, provided such persons make affidavit to the fact.

The State Board of Health publishes annually a list of the registered physicians and surgeons in the State.

Penalties: Forfeiture of all rights as a physician, $100 fine, criminal prosecution. Approved January 1, 1883; amended January, 1887. Fine, $50. Imprisonment, three months, or both.

Legislation in Louisiana: South. Jl. Hom'y, August, 1890.

Maine.

Several attempts have been made to inaugurate medical registration, but as yet no law has been passed.

Maryland.

A new Law was passed in March, 1892. It provides for: Two Boards of Medical Examiners, one representing the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of the State of Maryland, the other the Maryland State Homœopathic Medical Society. Each Board to consist of seven members, and "each Board to have exclusive right to examine, pass upon the qualifications of, and license its own applicants." Each member must be a physician in active practice. Members of any college or university or any one having any pecuniary interest in the trade of pharmacy cannot serve. Each Board must meet once or more each year. Applicants are required to make a written application to one of these Boards, either the Homœopathic or Allopathic. Each applicant must be twenty-one years of age; of good moral character; possessed of a competent common school education; must have either received a diploma from some legally chartered college in the United States, or from some foreign college; must have studied medicine for three years, and have attended three courses of lectures in each year (provided two courses in one year do not satisfy the above requirements) prior to receiving the diploma, or foreign license; must pass a written examination in medicine. "In the department of therapeutics and practice, the questions shall be in harmony with the tenets of the school selected by the candidate. The name, school of graduation, and preparatory training of the applicant shall not be known to the examiners until his examination papers have been graded."

Re-examination by the same Board may be had in one year from a rejection. Examination fee, $10. Licenses must be filed with the Clerk of the Circuit Court in the applicant's County. Registration fee, $1.

This Law takes effect on and after June 1, 1892. It only applies to such persons as commenced the practice of medicine in Maryland, after that date.

Penalties: $50 to $200 fine, confinement until fine and costs are paid.

Approved by Gov. Frank Brown, March 25, 1892.

Legislation in Maryland: Northwest. Jl. Hom'y, April, 1892.

Massachusetts.

No Special Medical Laws.

Michigan.

Every graduate of a reputable college can practice after filing with the Clerk of his County a sworn statement as follows: If he is in practice; for how long a time; the name of his Alma Mater; when he graduated; from which school; if a student or undergraduate; how long he has been studying and where; name of the college; name and residence of his preceptor.

Registration fee is 50 cents. No one not registered can legally collect a fee. Penalties: $5 to $50. Approved September 7, 1883. Five years' practice qualifies after registration.

Minnesota.

Has a State Board of nine Medical Examiners. Two of these are homœopathic physicians. No member of the faculty of any medical school is allowed to serve on this Board. Intending practitioners must present diplomas and pass an examination before this Board and present evidence of having attended three full courses of lectures each of six months. Examination fee is $10. The Board confers a license that must be filed in the Office of the County Clerk, in the practitioner's County. Penalties: $50 to $100, or jail from ten to ninety days, or both. Physicians licensed under the Act of 1883 are exempt. Approved February 28, 1887.

Mississippi.

Boards of Censors, consisting of two members, are formed in each Congressional District. Examinations are written, no discrimination is allowed as to different schools of practice. The State Board of Health has jurisdiction in cases of appeal.

Applicants must present in writing, name, age, residence, time spent in study, preceptor's name and address, courses of medical lectures, name of school; if a graduate, name of Alma Mater; how much time spent in a hospital, duration of practice, school of practice, personal references. The fee is $15.25. If the result be favorable the State Health Board grants a license which must be recorded by the County Clerk and a fee of $1.50 paid. Practitioners when this Act took effect, were granted licenses after showing diplomas, answering the above questions and paying 10 cents. Penalties: $50 to $500, or 10 to 30 days in jail, or both. Approved February 28, 1882.

Missouri.

The State Board of Health issues certificates to all holders of reputable diplomas, charging a fee of $1. Non-graduates must pass an examination. Certificates must be recorded by the County.

Clerk. Penalties: $50 to $500, or 30 days in jail, or both. Approved July, 1883. Since 1890 three annual graded courses of lectures and four years' study are required.

This license can for cause be revoked. The fine is not more than $300. Examination fees, $5. Registration of diploma, $1.

New Jersey.

The Governor appoints a Board of nine Medical Examiners, consisting of three Homœopaths, five Allopaths, and one Eclectic.

Examinations are held quarterly. A unanimous vote is necessary. Certificates must be registered. The fee is $15. Approved, 1890-91.

New Mexico.

Applicants must present diplomas to a Territorial Examining Board of seven physicians, paying a fee of $5. Non-graduates must pass an examination, fee $10. Certificates must be recorded in the County Offices. Penalties: $50 to $500. Practitioners of ten years exempted. Approved March 2, 1882. The Board consists of two Homœopaths, one Eclectic, and four Allopaths.

New York.

By a Law passed May 29, 1880, every person practicing medicine was required to register in the office of his County Clerk, paying a fee of twenty-five cents. The fine was $50 to $200, or thirty to ninety days in jail, or both. In 1889 efforts were made to have an Examining Board exclusively Allopathic, appointed. The Homœopaths demanded a separate Board, and the bill was defeated.

The present Law, passed in 1890, is as follows:

After September 1, 1891, there shall be three separate Boards of Medical Examiners, representing the State Medical (Allopathic) Society, the Homœopathic and the Eclectic Societies. Each Board is to consist of seven members. The Board of Regents of the University of New York appoint, these Examining Boards, from nominees submitted by the three Societies. Each member acts for three years. These Examiners must hold one or more meetings yearly under the general supervision of a Special Examiner appointed by the Regents. The examination must be in writing, and must be uniform, except in the special Therapeutics, Practice and Materia Medica of each school.

The Board of Regents issues certificates of practice, the fee for which is $25. Candidates must possess a reputable diploma. If a candidate fails to pass he may be re-examined within six months, without a fee. Physicians holding licenses from other States may on payment of ten dollars, receive a license without further examination. Approved June 5, 1890.

Amendment to New York Medical Law:

Students who had matriculated in New York prior to the passage of this Act are exempt from an examination, provided a certificate to that effect is filed on or before August 4, 1891, in the Regent's Office at Albany. (See North. Am. J. Hom'y, June, 1891.)

The Governor appoints a Board of Examiners consisting of three members. Any graduate on presenting a reputable diploma to this Board may, on payment of one dollar, receive a certificate which must be registered with the Clerk of his County.

Non-graduates must pass an examination, and pay a fee of $3. Penalties : $50 to $500, or imprisonment thirty days to one year, or both. Approved February 28, 1889.

Pennsylvania.

None but graduates, or practitioners of twenty years, may practice. Those having diplomas, must file a copy of the same with the Prothonotary of their several Counties, paying a fee of one dollar, and receiving a certificate. Non-graduates of twenty years' practice must also present and prove their professional status, and may then also receive a certificate. Penalties : $100, or jail for not more than a year, or both. Approved in 1881.

There is in Pennsylvania a State Pharmaceutical Board consisting of five practical pharmacists. No one is allowed to conduct a drug store or pharmacy without a license from this Board. This law was passed in 1885. The Homœopathic druggists also prepared a bill at the same time, asking for the establishment of a Homœopathic Pharmaceutical Examining Board. This bill was not passed. In order that the Homœopathic School should have their just rights in the matter Governor Beaver, at a suggestion from the Homœopathic Pharmaceutical Society of Pennsylvania, through Dr. F. J. Slough, appointed on the State Pharmaceutical Examining Board

Mr. A. J. Tafel. Mr. Tafel has since continued on that Board and is at present its Treasurer.
